The Midsummer Festival a Great Success.

THOUSANDS COME TO THE CITY

And Witness the Greatest Parade Ever Seen in the South.

It was a grand success. Atlanta has never had such a show. The south has never known such thorough and complete trade display. .Crowds were never more orderly and

The midsummer festival surpassed the fondest dreams of those most interested in it, and was in every respect the grandest spectacular show ever witnessed in the success, and people came from every part of the state, from Alabama, Mississippi, Florida and the Carolinas to witness it. And everyone was delighted.

So perfect and complete was the display that steps have already been taken to make the midsummer festival a permanency Every year the display will be repeated. Only with each year there will be marked improvements. Atlanta's varied industriès were never known to the people and the show gave them an inkling only of what surrounds them. Every business was represented in the line and the great throngs which saw it pass added a new and interesting chapter to their book of knowledge.

The story of the day is here told in

MAKE IT PERMANENT. There Will Be a Permanent Organization of the Midsummer Festival.

Mr. M. C. Kiser, chairman of the executive committee, requests THE CONSTITUTION to call a meeting for 4:30 o'clock this afternoon fro the purpose of making a permanent organization of the midsummer

The meeting will take place in room 102 of the Kimball house, and will be a most important one in every respect.

It is essential that every member of the executive committee be present, as matters of extreme importance will be taken up for consideration.

The success of the festival fully warrants this step, and it is earnestly requested that full meeting be held this afternoon. THE DAY BEGINS.

Trains Bringing in the People Who Wanted to See the Show. Everybody was happy.

Everybody was in a good humor.

And pleasant anticipations wreathed the city

But this did not in the least dampen the ardor of those on holiday enjoyments bent. Before the first faint flush of dawn had faded from the eastern sky the streets resounded with the tramp of hurrying feet, and long be-fore the hour when Atlanta becomes fully awake, the city was alive with the bustle and commotion of preparation.

Business men were hurrying to and fro, shutters were flung open, and every clerk and salesman was at his post, so that by the time the first train arrived the stores on Peachtree, Whitehall, Marietta, Decatur and other business streets, were wide open, the sidewalks swept, the signs all out and everything ready

Those who had floats in the procession were busy putting the finishing touches on their displays; and, altogether, the scene was one of the most lively and animating description.

THE FIRST TRAIN came trundling into the Union passenger depot, over the Georgia road, at 6:30 o'clock. Every coach of the long train was full of exstill, a mighty rush was made for the exit at the big front gate. And this rush continued until the last train came in at a little after 11 o'clock. Following the Georgia train came the Georgia Pacific, forty minutes late, but filled to overflowing with happy excursionists.

At 6:34 o'clock the Western and Atlantic came rolling in, loaded down with passenger who had come to enjoy the midsum-mer festival. These were the first arrivals, and a continual stream poured out of the depot, separating and scattering

The hotels and restaurants were crowded fast for the hungry multitudes.

THE CITY IN GALA ATTIRE. Meanwhile the big flag was flung to the breezes from the tall front of the Chamber of Commerce, and flags and bunting were observ able everywhere among the business houses.

The streets were crowded with Atlanta p ple, up early and eager to participate in the Gangs of boys in fantastic costumes, masked and blowing tin horns for dear life, went tramping here and there raising a terrible din.

Delivery wagons were draped in bunting and flags, and even the hackmen had their teams decked out in fancy style.

It was a striking scene to be observed on a morning in midsummer in a southern city.

Later in the day the trains brought addi-tional crowds, which swelled the throng until the city was literally alive with people bent on enjoying the day.

AT PIEDMONT PARK. The Bacing-Zouave Drilling-The Elephant

The Racing—Zouave Drilling—The Elephant and the Children.

The day's lamusements at Piedmont park were of a most entertaining sort.

The grand stand was an inviting retreat, giving a splendid view of the various sports and opening upon a charming prospect of green fields and wooded hills beyond.

Early in the day the people began flocking to Piedmont, scattering over the grounds and visiting the buildings until the hour set for the commencement of the festivities. Clio's stable was the favorite rendesvous for the merry makers, especially among the young folks, many of whom helped to compose the personnel of the throng.

THE CHILDREN WERE HAPPY.

The children enjoyed themselves as only children can, frolicking through the grounds and romping wherever their sweet wills listed. They seemed to understand that it was their day-that the big show was all on account of their elephant, and their happiness and enjoy-ment knew no restraint.

Especially were the smaller folk delighted with the elephant. So large a part of their thoughts did Clio occupy that every now and then during the progress of the entertainment their enthusiasm would burst out in many shouts for "the elephant, the elephant."

They were eager to see their beast appear to play his part in the day's show; and it is safe to say that never before did any elephant, even twice the size of "our Clio," receive when twice the size of the case such an ovation.

The fact is, the elephant was uppermost in the minds of the biggest part of the crowd, young and old, up to the time she appeared on the case of the the track, and appeared to take her place in the parade. After she had

The elephant would have to have a heap of trunks to satisfy the many other little ones whose minds ran in a like direction.

THE SHOW AT THE GROUNDS.

Between three and four thousand people were in the grand stand and scattered about the terrace overlooking the track when the programme was begun.

All were in lively spirits, displaying eagerness and interest in each of the events. Refreshments were served on the grounds, and this added to the enjoyment of the day there.

The Fourth Artillery hand came on the grounds sometime before the sport began, and rendered several selections which were very much appreciated.

All of the features on the programme were All of the features on the programme were carried out, and all were highly satisfactory to the people who had gathered to witness them. The races were exciting, and the drills by the Zouaves were such as to elicit a great deal of applause. Captain Hollis and his boys covered themselves with glory, as they always do, and when they left the field it was amid enthysicatic appliance. thusiastic applause.

A running race, half mile heats, was the first event of the entertainment. The starters were Ada Gray, owned by Mr. Hugh McConnell, Jim Brier, owned by Mr. McLendon, and Unknown, owned by Mr. Mengo White, all Atlanta gentlemen.

It was a good race from the jump. Ada Gray won the first and second heats in 56 and 58½. Jim Brier was second in the first heat and Unknown second in the second heat. Following this horse race came a 200-yard foot race for a handsome gold medal and the championship of the state.

The foot races were all under the management of Professor A. H. Whitman, of the Y

In the 200-yard dash Mr. Ed Wilson won over Mr. Bob Lawshe in 233. Wilson won by only about three inches, the race being very close and interesting from the scratch. Next there was a two-mile bicycle race for a andsome cup and the amateur championship was one of the most attractive of the day's at tractions. The gay looking company received an ovation as it marched down the race track and came to a present before the grand stand.

Captain Hollis with Lieutenant White was in command. Twenty men took part in the drill.

All sorts of catchy and difficult movements were executed by the Zouaves, with a steadiness and precision that gained for them the hearty applause of the grand stand spectators.

To describe the evolutions and manuel of this crack Zouave company would be difficult. No prettier were ever put up by any body of soldiers, and Captain Hollis fully deserved the hearty enthusiasm with which he and his men were received.

After the manœuvers by the company, a splendid exhibition drill was gone through with by the Lightning squad.

At the conclusion of the programme everything gave way to the elephantiand the other animals that were waiting at the entrance to the track to give their part of the avhibition.

When the last race had been run and the foaming horses taken from the track, without a pause in the programme Manager Havens, of the zoo, ordered the animal cages to be rolled before the grand stand.

The first cage brought forward was that containing the jaguar.

The "spotted terror of the jungles," prancing frantically from one side of the cage to the other, hissing and growling with low but terrific thunder, at once caught theleves of the

The cage was gorgeously decorated with red, white and blue bunting, and was a show in itself well worth beholding.

As soon as it became known that Manager Havens intended to perform the daring feat of entering the cage, and engaging in some rough and tumble athletic sport with the fierce animal, the excitement arose to a high pitch all through the grand stand grand stand.

A throng of enthusiactic boys crowded around the cage to watch the performance, their very hearts almost bursting with that spirit of adventure that characterizes every American youth. Old men looked on with a thrilling impulse, while the ladies cast fustive glances from over the fians which they would, woman-like, now and then throw up to their faces with a perceptible shudder, and an audible scream ol horror.

FACING THE JAGUAR.

But Manager Havens was undaunted, and clad in trim red tights he leaped upon the cage and was soon standing face to face with the beast.

Armed with nothing but a small riding whip, he walked gently to the animal, and speaking in a tone of kindness, ordered him to lean over the outstratched whin.

speaking in a tone of kindness, ordered him to leap over the outstretched whip.

For sometime the jaguar obstinately refused, replying to its master's entreaties only with fierce growls and hisses.

Coaxed into a better humor, the beast finally began to preform and leaned lightly over the whip while the crowds cheered.

After giving several other tricks the man and the beast, lying flat on the floor of the cage together, were drawn away.

The children screamed with loud cheers at the sight.

THE LION COMES. The lion caused a great deal of interest, and arge crowds of children were about the cage

Turning from one side of his narrow cage to the other and rearing against the iron sides, the lion offered a scene truly inspiring, and when a horse was driven by now and then, he would leap forward with a fercious bound with his tail straight in the air.

In the air.

The animal show was indeed pleasant for the young folks and for the old ones as well. FORMING THE PROCESSION. Promptly at 2 o'cleck the procession began of form at the exposition grounds.

Next came the Fourth artillery band. Then the elephant, managed by two men. Then came the carriage drawn by four bay orses, in which were Mr. M. C. Kiser, chairprogrammer, representing THE CONSTITUTION job office. Then the beautiful turreted canopy, drawn by four prancing bays. This was concededly one of the most artistic designs in the procession. The side arches represented the coat of arms of Georgia, and the word "Concoat of arms of Georgia, and the word "Constitution" in the motto representing the great paper which rose in defense of constitutional rights during the dark days of reconstruction. It was covered with flags, and above all, poised with outspread wings, was a magnificent specimen of the American eagle. "Under this was a Liberty press in brisk operation, with a half dozen newsboys in strange yellow and black clothes, as happy as if the dodgers they scattered were prize tickets in the lottery.

But the last float was best—Uncle Remus and the little boy, the old-fashioned cabin with the gourds and pepper-pods and dirt-dobber chimney, and a Georgia watermelon at the old man's feet. The gray old man was a type; the little boy was a type, with his toy gus, listening to the wonderful stories about Brer Fox and Brer Rabbit; the cabin, the chickens in the coop at the back door—everything as realistic and picturesque as life.

"Oh, there's Uncle Remus!"

"Look at Uncle Remus, mamma! Look at Uncle Remus!"

"Look at Brer Rabbit! That's Brer Rabbit ridin' Brer Fox!"

It was that way all the afternoon, hailed

It was that way all the afternoon, hailed everywhere with childish enthusiasm and delight, and calling back to older heads a tender memory of childhood and the old plantation.

Then came two miles of floats, beyond all deabt the most elaborate and the most beautiful industrial exhibit ever made in the south.

It was a magnificent panorama, moving in stately majesty, each thing of beauty a type of Atlanta enterprise and accomplishment, each piece and part a testimony to the industrial supremacy of the capital of Georgia.

A thousand and one ingenious devices were there to please and interest, perhaps to amuse.

The sidewalks, from Ponce de Leon circle almost to Grant park, along the route of the procession, were crowded.

Men, women and children, old and young, white and black, some dressed in silk and some in rags, watched in really kindred interest, and cheered and wondered and laughed together.

The sash, door and wood-work display of H.

Mr. J. A. Anderson, the clothier, came next.

Faulkner, Keelam & Moore, the manufacturing opticians, followed. A wise-looking foreigner was grinding away to the verification of a motto overhead, "We Have the Only Lens Grinder in the South."

Then C. A. Rauschenberg, the butcher.

The exposition Mills next, with a small-sized factory in brisk operation.

Dwight's brand of soda came next, distributing pictures and packages of soda. Here was the small boy again, scrambling for a package of soda as desperately as if his life or his vocation depended upon his success.

John J. Woodside, the renting agent, had six floats in line, making a very handsome display. He drove in one himself, and the little girl with him was a beauty. That was little Miss Woodside.

J. J. Duffy, the king of grocers, had six pieces in line, with the most alluring promises imaginable painted on the banners and the tops and bottoms and sides of the wagons—a beautiful present to every lady customer married in January, 1891, another present to the first one married, a complete housekeeping outfit to another, and so on. It seemed almost impossible to miss getting at least one of these prizes.

R. Lee Miller & Co., fruits and confections, came next.

Then Kuhn, the photographer, taking the elephant's picture.

H. L. Atwater was represented by a hand-some float, carrying his beautiful reindeer team.

The Grassland Stock Farm was well represented—bales of hay and bundles of green food, a team of match Shetland ponies, a couple of blooded horses, a little negro jockey and his horse, like a photograph from the race

Next, came the carrige of General H. J.

The carriage next in line carried Colonel G.

Cooper and Captain Whack Bailey.

The second caariage carried Messrs. Lewis Golstin, Charles Thorn, M. Rich and J. J.

Falvey.

Next in the procession was the tally-ho, loaded with about thirty children, who kept things lively all the way, screaming and shouting "Hurrah for the elephant!" "Hooray for horah!" etc.

And then the exposition float, which was simply superb. It consisted of a large throne upon which were Miss Lula Coleman, in beautiful costume, with palette and brush representing art, Miss Mary Edwards with fitting style representing the manufacturing department, a farmer representing in his dress the agricultural department, and a machinist representing the mechanical department. The float was drawn by six mules, and was indeed handsome and compléte in every way.

And it was enjoyed.

And it was enjoyed.

And it was enjoyed.

All along the line from Pence de Leon avenue to Grant park the streets and sidewalks were packed. The windows, house tops, telephone, telegraph poles, water plugs—any place of vantage was occupied from one end to the other. As seen the floats were: THE CONSTITUTION. There were three floats in THE CONSTITU-TION'S place at the head of the parade—the stylish little wagen of Mr. Pesse, the official taffy from the candy man's wagon, a toy table tairy from the candy man's wagon, a toy table or chair, a photograph, maybe a package of soda, a doll hat or a ribbon—and a bewildering recolection of the flags, and the kings and the queens and the elephant and Uncle Remus, and the hundreds of curious and fantastic designs on the floats.

To older people there was a great deal of meaning in it all.

"Law!" said a pleasant-faced country woman on Whitehall as the procession was meaning in it all.

"Law!" said a pleasant-faced country woman on Whitehall, as the procession was passing: "I knowed Atlanty war a mighty big place, but I never knowed it was this big."

The homely sentiment was one that every visitor here yesterday, and a great many people who have lived here all their lives, must have carried home with them.

The brightest anticipations were realized.

Nobody was disappointed.

The festival was a success.

Just after Uncle Remus's cabin came J. M.

Just after Uncle Remus's cabin came J. M. High's float—the prettiest woman in Georgia seated as a queen upon her throne, four knights in armor at the four corners of the base, four negro footmen in Arab costume leading four iron-gray horses, and a turbaned old Mussulman driving. The decorations in pink and Nile-green satin were superb; the beauty's vail, fair and royal purple and old gold cloak were worth traveling all day to behold.

"Who is she?"
"Usn't she a beauty?"

"Isn't she a beauty?" "She gets $1,000 for that!"
"Why, she isn't a woman. That's a girl.
She ought to wear long dresses. But isn't she

J. J. Falvey, the popular wholesale commis-sion merchant, had two floats. In the first was a band of negro minstrels, banjo, bones, tambourine and all.

The seat for the driver was a tub; the driver and horse being small in proportion with the vehicle.

G. E. Johnson, the candy manufacturer, had three floats and his position was specially prominent for the crowd of struggling small boys that surrounded it. Candy was had for the picking up.

The Brosius moter sewing machine attracted a good deal of attention. There were machines being operated by two little boys and the ladies were particularly interested and Eiseman Bros., the clothiers, had a unique design—a boat with ten sailors, plying their oars to the music of a nautical tune. The waves were there, capped with foam, and the oars dipped as merrily as life.

The Atlanta Furniture Manufacturing The Atlanta Furniture Manufacturing Company was another of the most popular floats. Little pieces of cabinet work—doll chairs and tables and the like—were thrown out for the crowds to scramble for.

John M. Moore, the shoe merchant.

Then Faber, the photographer—one of the most artistic pieces in the procession. Here was another canopy and another throne and another queen—

The two floats of Mr. John M. Smith, the carriagemaker, came next in the procession. Then that of Burke, the Old Book Store Man. His advertisements had, it is said, $1,000 in money, wrapped up and distributed. The parcels were greedly sought after.

Then the float of Mr. Sam Walker, who makes picture frames. A pyramid of framed pictures, in all designs, with panels of moulding.

Thomas Alexander, who repairs umbrellas. A score of patched and mended umbrellas, red, blue, green, yellow and black—all surmounted by an immense umbrella handle.

A. J. Deliridge, the colored shoemaker, had his shop on wheels, and everybody at work.

The Southern Belt Company's float was a very neat and pretty one.

B. F. Vineburg, the plumber.

The Band.

And then the prettiest little float in all the line, that of the Fetzer Clothing Company. It was a cunning little white cart drawn by an English mastiff, driven by a little girl.

The Cook Brewing Company had a beautiful float. A round, good-natured old monarch was seated upon a throne with his flowing glass of beer, and two little pages were in walting, each with a mug of beer.

The Atlanta Paper Company.

Brown & King, the machinery dealers.

The Moxie display, a pyramid of moxie bottles of various colors artistically arranged, and two negro banjo pickers inside.

About 150 city drammers for wholesale houses, mounted, marching two abreast.

And last came one of the unique features of the procession—the display of the Hosch Lumber Company. This was an immense pine log, fully one hundred feet long, drawn by six oxen, two abreast. The two-wheeled cart, with whoels eight or ten feet high, and the huge chain fastenings, was a novel sight on the paved streets of Atlanta. Not the least interesting feature about this was the old pineytwoods darky who drove the oxen. His long rawhide whip was a curiosity, and the skill with which he handled it was a revelation.

That was the last float in the procession, and one of the best.

THE ELEPHANT AT HOME.

The Procession Enters Grant Park and the Elephant is Formally Surrendered. It was a few minutes to 4 o'clock when the bead of the procession entered the park, by the way of Milledge avenue.

It looked as if all the people in and around Atlanta had appeared on the streets along the line of the procession inside the city proper.

line of the procession inside the city proper.

But there were accumulated thousands of people congregated in Grant park, who had been patiently waiting for the appearance of the pagent. Men, women and children occupied every available seat, and the grassy banks were lined with expectant people who wanted to see the procession. Queen Clio was very tired after the long weary march through the dust and dearth of the long six-mile route.

So, when the head of the procession reached the pavilion, her majesty dropped out, and was allowed a breathing spell.

In a twinkling there was not standing room within a 100 feet of Queen Clio, and she grew a little restive. After a couple of turns around the pavillion, she was taken into a cool, shady spot, and allowed to rest while the great crowd of admirers remained at a respectful distance, so as not to amoy her.

The other portion of the procession proceeded.

spot, and allowed to rest while the great crowd of admirers remained at a respectful distance, so as not to annoy her.

The other portion of the procession proceeded along the prescribed line of march until the Gress zoo was reached, and the lion and the jaguar arrived at the Zoo, free of accident, Superintendent Havens occupying a seat with the untamable jaguar, during the whole procession, which he never vacated until their arrival at the zoo. The cage was made expressly for Superintendent Havens by the Atlanta Wire and Iron Works Company.

Queen Clio's quarters are roomy, well lighted and airy.

A space in the big building has been allotted her, near the main entrance. It has been neatly floored, and windows on either side admit light and air.

The floor is made of stout planks, and a huge post has been driven into the ground, to which she will be fastened, except on occasions when she is allowed to be at liberty, as in case of public parades and processions.

in case of public parades and processions PRESENTING THE ELEPHANT.

Miss Clio Formally Presented to the City and Formally Accepted.

When at last the floats had all gone by the pavilion and the band had ceased to play, General Chairman H. J. Fear called the crowd at the pavillion to order and began the presen.

at the pavillion to order and began the presentation ceremonies as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen: Atlanta believes in the universal brotherhood of man. Within her gates are admitted people of all nationalities and all conditions in life. Here, in the queen city of the south, there is only the passport to commercial success, towit: "Industry and fair dealing."

Atlanta people judge all men and all things by their merit, which, after all, is the only true title to any privilege we have. Atlanta is literary and scholarly. Behold her many schools of learning, her public and private libraries. In the phenomenal city of the south the poor man, without money or price, can give his children the finest English education, that any public school system in the world can afford. Here the most exacting and scholarly taste of the most ambitious can be gratified, by drinking deep from the richest fountains of learning. She not only affords the opportunity of acquiring knowledge from libraries and institutions that are classical, but she has at her command the best weekly and daily press, that is to be found anywhere. You may go north, east, west and south, and in fact across the waters and you can not find any two newspapers that are equal to The ATLANTA CONSTITUTION and Evening Journal.

They have only to take out their old rusty Aladdin's lamp and give it a rub, when out jumps Genii and says, "What wilt thou have me to do?" and these papers will say, give us the best public school system and the best paved streets in the world, and they are given. They rub the old lamp again, when out jumps Genii and says, "What wilt thou have me to do?" They ask for the greatest cotton exposition the world ever saw, and it is given. They rub again and ask for peace and Press to got the press of the press and the server. They rub and server love between the north and tation ceremonies as follows:

real and mineral displays in the world, and it is given.

They rub again and ask for peace and brotherly love between the north and the south, and we now see the bright morning star of love pushing its golden rays above the horizon. Last, but not least of all, they rub again and ask for the greatest midsummer festival in the world, showing the industries and business of Atlanta, and let us make glad the hearts of the children by having an elephant sent to them, so that they can ride on his back and feed him with ginger cakes, and no sooner has the request been given than we behold today the grandest pageant of all the orients.

Ladies and gentlemen, Atlanta today presents a panorama spread out in gorgeous splendor, her streets radiating from center to circum rence with costly industries of every clime, and with every child within her limits laughing at the thought of having an elephant to play with and I am now glad that it is my good fortune to present to you Atlanta's only inimitable Colonel George W. Adair, who will now talk to you on the subject of elephantology.

who began by telling of his tribulation in preparing a speech on the elephant.

Finally he began to think what a good thing an elephant was, how big and how sagacious. Then he thought of all the elephants The Constitution had presented Atlanta with.

"And when I say elephant," he said, "I mean something big, something good."

"Then," said he, "I began to count up those labeled the said of the said he, as a stonished at their

Mayor Pro Tem. Hutchinson accepted the ephant in behalf of the city in the following remarks:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: Our hon Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: Our non-ored mayor being absent, it becomes my pleasant duty to accept this elephant, which has been so generously donated to the city of Atlanta. In accepting this gift, I am impressed with the thought that this animal typifies the vigor, the energy, the sagacity and the perseverance of our own nepuls.

energy, the sagacity and the perseverance of our own people.

From her earliest days the people of Atlanta have been noted for their vigor, their energy, their sagacity and their perseverance in pushing to successful completion all their undertakings. Public enterprises have always had public sympathy, public encouragement and liberal support. Atlanta has ever been the rallying cry, and however much her people may have differed on other questions all have united for her upbuilding and for her material prosperity. As one man they have joined hands for the common good and the common prosperity. Whether a Kimball house was to be rebuilt, a Young Men's Christian Association to be crected, or a Piedmont exposition to be sustained, there have been found willing hands and liberal purses to contribute for its success. The smoking stacks and the many manufacturing industries of our city are monuments of the enterprise and thrift of our people. And the grand pageant we have just winessed is a revelation of our material progress and prosperity.

Ent while the neonle of Atlanta have been brave.

pageant we have just witnessed is a revelation of our material progress and prosperity.

But while the people of Atlanta have been brave to undertake and strong to accomplish, it is proper that we give just tribute to The Constitutions as a factor in her growth and development. There has been no enterprise great or small that it has not stood ready to encourage and to strengthen. It has often sounded a bugle blast that has radied our havings men to days and to do for the acour business men to dare and to do for the accomplishment of some great undertaking. But I am persuaded that on no occasion has it been more in sympathy with our whole people—the old and the young—than when it penned the line.
"The children must have an elephant." I believe the thought was an inspiration of my friend, Miles Turpin. It was elaborated and sent out in touching appeal by the warm-hearted and gifted Joel Chandler Harris. The children quickly tookit-up as a watchword. They organized into bands of workers. They gathered a little here and there until finally they collected, together about two thousand dollars. Truly they did their part well and have illustrated by their success that they have inherited the energy and perseverance of their fathers and as a reward of their labors we have that

In all ages the elephant has received marked In all ages the elephant has received marked attention, and in some countries he has been the object of adoration and worship; but, I fancy, no elephant in the world's history ever gave more genuine, solid pleasure than does this one on the present occasion. As I look into these children's faces I see expressed the joy they have in the knowledge that they own a real, live elephant. Yes, children, you own this elephat. You bought it, and it shall ever remain in this park as a memorial of your zeal and your enterprise, and it shall also be anotice that bring you to the kindhearted elephant editor of The Constitution.

And now Mr. Chairman of the Park Commission, I commit this elephant to your keeping. I feel assured that you will treat her well, for we all know of your great love for animals, and of your magnificent gift of a zoological collection to our city. Add this to your number, and let it be labeled "The Childrens' Offering," I am told that it is a performing elephant. The children for weeks have been singing, "The Elephant Walked the Rope." I trust this is a rope-walking elephant, and that you will give many exhibitions to which all the children of our city will be invited to come and witness without money and without price.

When Mr. Hutchinson had turned the elephant over to the park commission, Mr. G. V. Gress, president of the commission, responded as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen: In behalf of the park commission and of the people of Atlanta, I accept this very generous donation.
I am a plain business man not given to public speech, and I believe in that administration of the government which provides for public amuse-ment for all the people. I think it is essential to the happiness of a people, and I am always willing to lend a helping hand for the promotion of such a cause.

They are a splendid addition to our popular "200," and, speaking for myself and my worthy associates, we hope the time will come when Atlanta will have the finest collection of animals in this country. If you will pardon me, I will say that I am proud of my position as head of this park commission, where partial friends have placed me, and I hope my administration will be as successful as I wish it to be.

With our thanks for the complimentary manner is which we have been referred to, we accept this ublic donation in the name of the park compission.

Mr. Gress was heartily applauded, and Mr. Porter King, also of the park commission, rose and presented President Gress with a beautiful embroidered blanket, on behalf of the two daughters of Mrs. Joyner, for whom the ele-Colonel L. F. Livingston was called in and

For a few minutes the noise was indescribastill prevails over the recent gas explosion. It is now discovered that the whole neighborhood in the vicinity of the Young volcano is saturated with natural gas, and the soil is full of it. One can run a crowbar into the ground at any place and then light the gas which proceeds from the soil in various quantities. This would indicate that gas from two gas wells has found its way below the limestone, and in many places fractures in the stone permit it to escape into the sand and gravel immediately below the surface soil which partially prevents its escape into the air This bears out the theory that gas has for some time been escaping from the sides of the gas we'ls and diffusing itself in the sand and gravel below the limestone. In VanBuren township, twenty-four miles north of the late eruption, water wells, which have been sunk twenty to thirty feet, a few feet below the superstructure of stone, gas from the wells three miles away has broken into them and people have abandoned the use of the water, cased the wells and are now using the gas for fuel.

THERE MAY BE DANGER AHRAD. The whole township seems to be filled with the combustible, and the inhabitants are threat-ened with disaster. There is no telling but that the lighting of the match may blow two or three townships into smithereens. It is alto-gether probable that the diffusion of gas into soil, more or less, affects the growing crops.

The great question may yet be as to the advisability of sinking gas wells, or if sunk at all, whether other methods should not be used to case and confine the explosive. Pockets of gas are no doubt formexplosive. Pockets of gas are no doubt forming beneath the limestone all over the region of the gas belt, and it is only a question of time when it will break forth with terrific force. It is yet a question as to which is most hazardous—the accumulation of gas in the pockets, followed by eruptions similar to the Waldron blow-out, or permitting it to permeate the soil, as it is now doing in Van Buren and Noble townships, poisoning he water and diseasing the air.

THE BOYS USING IT.

THE BOYS USING IT. It is reported today that boys were roasting corn by gas jets produced by sticking cane down in the soil a few feet in the vicinity of the volcano. Such being the case, and firesides. Fissures of the ground blown to atoms Monday are now filling with water, through which gas occasionally forces its way.

SAM JONES IN KENTUCKY. Paragraphs from His Discourse at Parks

Hill Camp. PARIS, Ky.; August 12.—There was a great crowd at Parks Hill camp meeting today, fully 10,000 persons being present, and the meeting was conducted by Rev. Sam and Joe Jones, of Georgia. They delivered most powerful sermons, and it is with regret that Rev. Sam Jones is to leave the camp tomorrow. Rev. Joe Jones will remain during the meeting.

All told, Sam Jones speaks annually to more people than any man on the planet, Nor is this due to the fact that he is witty and uses slang. His originality and humor are among his strong attractions, but added to this, he is a pulpit orator of undoubted power. Last week he preached some fourteen sermons in Moberly, Mo., to crowds ranging from 2,000 to 6,000 people, which grew constantly the longer he preached, and his sermons were marvels of originality and power.

A marked merit of all his discourses is that every notice is made plain to the simplest distillery and warehouse of the Kentucky Dis-tilling Company, owned by Barkhouse & Co., were burned today, along with 25,000 barrels of whisky. The fire began in the warehouse and was caused by the carelessness of a colored la-borer who was shifting the barrels with a lighted lamp standing on the floor. A barrel rolled against the lamp, breaking it. The barrel was leaking and the whisky and oil flashed up like gunpowder and the flames filled the building at once. Not a single barrel of the liquor was saved.

A Half Million Dollar Blaze in Louisville -25,000 Barrels of Whisky Burned. LOUISVILLE, Ky., August 14.—The immens

The heat was tremendous and the fire was uncontrollable. All the buildings belonging to the plant were destroyed. The loss on whisky was $500,000; on buildings, perhaps $100,000 or more; all well insured.

It was 2 o'clock before the firemen got control, and this was not until the immense warehouse, distillery proper, cattle sheds fand slaughter house and pork packing establishment of Conrad & Seiler, which adjoin the warehouse, had been wiped out completely.

SOME OF THE LOSSES.

SOME OF THE LOSSES. The loss to the pork packing company will be about $50,000. The remaining loss of nearly or quite $800,000 is on the distillery proper and destroyed whisky. This loss is divided among twelve whisky firms, for whom Julius Barkhouse, as president of the Kentucky Distilling Company, manufactures whisky. These firms are the Kentucky Distilling ing Company, Max Hosheimer & Co., S. Lehman & Son, J. M. Miller & Co., Bernheim Distilling Company, Victor Distilling Company, Victor Distilling Company, Buckfrank & Co., Kentacky Blue Grass Distilling Company, and J. C. Marks & Co. These twelve firms had among them in the warehouse 23,711 packages, mostly in barrels, or 1,120,177 gallons. This whisky is valued at $700,000 in round numbers. The machinery and other contents of the building brings the total of the distilling companies' loss up to $800,000. This is irrespective of the loss to the government in unpaid taxes of 90 cents a gallon, which will amount to $981,635, making the total loss by fire not much less than $2,000,000. The insurance is roughly placed at $700,000. This is, of course, divided up among the different losers in the proportion of their shares in stored whisky, and was carried for them by Julius Barkhouse, as the Kentucky Distillery Company, in whose name the whisky was stored. It, of course, involves nearly every insurance company in the city and state that take this kind of risks, and some of the local companies are caught for large sums. Several foreign companies, however, carried some of the loss.

PROSPECTS FOR A LYNCHING. Highway Robber Whom a Mob Would Like to Handle.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., August 14 .- [Special.]-Since Wesley Nailling, colored, held up Dr. J. Shannon, near Dresden, Tuesday afternoon, robbed him of of $40 and then chased him into the woods at the point of a doubled-barrel shotgun, there has been much excitement among the doctor's friends, and it was decided to mob the negro if he was captured. Yesterday afternoon he surrendered and was jailed The sheriff, however, learned that a mob was coming and spirited Nailling away.

A mob of masked men did visit the jail last night, all armed with guns. They insisted on searching the jail, and were very indignant that the prisoner had been removed Nailling was returned to his cell this morning, and at 4 o'clock this afternoon was tried and bound over on $2,000 bond. He confessed te having held up other parties.

Dr. Shannon insists that the law take its course, but a large number of his relatives and friends have been in town all day, and unless the negro is again hidden out tonight, he will be lynched. Governor Taylor has telegraphed to Sheriff Eskridge to summon citizens and guard the jail. The excitement is on the in-crease and serious trouble is feared.

NEWS FROM BUENOS AYRES.

The Military Drill Suspended—The Financial Situation. Buenos Avres, August 14.—The government intends to prevent the militia drill in Cordova, even if it is compelled to force the governor of the province to resign. It is also determined that nothing shall prevent forced liquidation of provincial national banks, which violate the terms of their charters. The government will reveal the entire truth a recent renment will reveal the entire truth as regards the financial position of the country. This depresses affairs now, but affords the hope of real improvement in the future. At a sale of good Estancia property yesterday, unexpectedly high prices in gold were realized.

The Sun's Cotton Review. The Sun's Cotton Review.

New York, August 14.—Futures opened at a decline of eight points on August and one to two points on the other months, closing quiet and steady at two points' decline on August and partially one point advance on the other months from yesterday's closing prices. The market opened weak under an easier report from Liverpool, but soon took a stronger turn, which in the absence of any other possible cause was ascribed to dearer silver in this market. There was no considerable advance, however. The best prices were made about noon, and the market from that time to the close was a dull one. The weather generally at the south was favorable to maturity and gathering cotton. Cotton on spot was steadier, but quiet.

The Shippers Gain Their Point. The Shippers Gain Their Point.
CHICAGO, August 14.—[Special.]—Shippers throughout the United States have gained a great victory over the railroads in securing a modification of a uniform bill of lading. The concession made by the carriers consists in striking out the words, "not negotiable," against which the chief complaint was made. The railroad representatives agreed to this today and the amended bill goes into use September 1st.

THERE IS A SPLIT.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA CONVENTION ENDS IN A ROW.

THE ANTI-TILLMANITES WALK OUT and Assemble in Another Hall-A Convention of the Straightout Democrats

Called to Meet.

COLUMBIA, S. C., August 14.-[Special.]-The long-threatened split in the democracy of South Carolina has come. Last night the Tillman men refused to take a recess and they remained in session until o'clock this morning. They carried out their programme regardless of protests or argument. Captain B. R. Tillman, who had repeatedly promised that would appear before the he convention and advocate a primary did not move out of his room in a hotel. It appears that he was in the same fear of assassination here as in Charleston two weeks ago. A detective in citizens clothes is reported to have been in his room during a part of the evening and police were in the hotel apparently guarding the farmers' candidate for governor. He was guarded from his arrival here on Tuesday until he left here this morning.

HOW THE SPLIT OCCURRED. The split occurred at 4:30 o'clock this morning when the committee on constitution, consisting very largely of of Tillmanites, made their report. The majority offered a constitution for adoption. The minority offered a constitution for adoption. The minority of the committee protested, declaring that the convention had no right to adopt a constitution when it was called for another specific purpose. The scene was one of wild confusion when the arguments begun. Eloquent speeches made by leading were men in the state. Efforts were made by the straighouts to adjourn, but they were hailed down. The majority were urged for the unity of the party to respect its usages and customs. The argument had no effect. The vote on the adoption of the constitution was put and carried by a vote of 253 to 53. The split then occurred.

THE FORCES DIVIDE,

Immediately upon the announcement of the vote, every anti-Tillman delegate arose, fell in line, and in silence marched from the hall. They subsequently met: in another hall, and formed a temporary organization by electing George Lamb of Charleston, chairman. Buist. An executive committee, consisting of A. C. Haskell, J. W. Barnwell, T. D. Blanding, Walter Hazard and W. J. Verdier, was appointed to prepare and issue an address to the people. The manner of conducting the fight was discussed at length.

THE STRAIGHTOUTS' CONVENTION,

The executive committee, appointed at the anti-Tillman convention held here in July, tonight issued a call for a convention of straightout democrats to assemble in this city on the 26th instant. It is generally recognized that the party has split and that a ticket will be put up against Tillman. HOW STOCKS ARE AFFECTED.

CHARLESTON, S. C., August 14.-[Special.]-The action of the Tillmanite convention in Columbia last uight in trying to usurp the places of the state democratic executive committee, has caused a tumble in the stock market here. Despite the fact that the convention passed resolutions promising to look after the debt of the state with as much care as it has been looked after by the state heretofore, no body seems to have confidence in their promises. A large holder of Brown consols un loaded today at 981, and before the close of business hours the quotations had dropped to 98. These bonds were quoted on the New York Stock Exchange last January at 105. tion, and are now offered at 98. The withdrawal of the straight-out democratic delegates from the convention at 4 o'clock this morning widens the breach in the party. ANXIOUS FOR A FIGHT.

In this section of the country everybody is red hot for a fight to the bitter end. The convention to nominate state officers occurs in September, and the straight-out democrats are organizing for it. They will elect dalegates in every county, ignoring the new Tillman executive committee, and will put in a candidate in the field, and expect to elect him. Ex-Judge A. C. Haskell, of Columbia, is spoken of as a fighting candidate. If no candidate is put out against Tillman, the thousands of democrats who oppose him will remain away from the polis. There is a strong talk among the republicans here of putting up George J. Cunningham, who is a wealthy man and conservative republican, and who at one time was elected by the white people of this city mayor over the regular democrats away from the polls, Cunningham might be elected. The republicans, however, seem indisposed to put out a state ticket, and are content to lend organizing for it. They will elect dalegates The republicans, however, seem indisposed to put out a state ticket, and are content to lend a hand to the whites in the fight, which is sure to come. It is probable that Tillman may get a majority of the alliance negro vote in the upper section of the state, but an aged colored republican in the low county voiced the sentiments of many thousands of his race when he said: "Cuffee gwine vote wid he ole massa." Meanwhile everybody is waiting with intense anxiety the outcome of the straight-out democratic conference in Columbia.

THE NEGROES AGAINST TILLMAN.

THE NEGROES AGAINST TILLMAN. SPARTANBURG, S. C., August 14 .- [Special.] The excitement created by the result of the convention in Columbia last night is at fever heat. The correspondent of THE CONSTITU-TION has just made a personal canvass among the most prominent members of both factions in order to obtain an expression of the popular sentiment. No one doubts for a morr there will be a split in the democratic ranks. It is believed both parties will bid for the republican vote. A leading negro republican said this morning, that should a split develop, the negroes of this section would support the "straightout" nominees to a man. Tillman has antagonized the negro vote from the beginning.

THE FIGHT IN THE SEVENTH.

The republican convention of the seventh district today nominated T. E. Miller for congress by a vote of 21 to 18. Miller is the colored candidate. E. M. Brayton, who ran against him and got eighteen votes, drew out his forces and will enter the race. He claims that two of the delegates from Berkley county—Ostendorff, white, and Middleton, colored—were bought out by Miller, who is backed by rich republicans here, after having been instructed by the county convention to vote for him (Brayton). After the withdrawal of the Brayton delegates, Ostendorff and Middleton were expelled by the Berkley delegation and two others substituted in their places. This gave Brayton 20 to 19 for Miller, and he claims the nomination. The fight promises to be a most bitter one.

The new constitution was adopted and the plan of primary election at this year's election for delegates to the state nominating convention was defeated. Upon this action the delegations from Richmond, Charleston, Beaufort and Sumter, comprising anti-Tillinanites, withdrew, formed a new convention and elected Hon. George Lamb Buist, chairman, and E. J. Brennon, secretary. They chose an executive committee to prepare an address, and took a recess.

COMMENT OF THE PAPERS.

CHARLESTON, S. C., August 14.—The democratic convention yesterday is the talk of the state. The general opinion is that there will be no split in the party, and that the action of the convention yesterday settled nothing but the question of manner of electing delegates to the September convention. The News and Courier holds that the convention exceeded its authority in adouting a new constitution. authority in adopting a new constitu the old executive committee is still the rightful head of the party, and the old constitution still the law of the party. The News and Courier the law of the party. The News and Courier will say tomorrow:

The convention in September will not be composed of the same delegates that attended the August convention. In ten of the counties, as we are informed, the election of delegates to the September convention was clearly illegal, and in these ten counties it will be necessary to go into a new election of delegates. With anything like organization and proper activity on the part of the straightout democrats, it will be practicable to secure a clear majority in the September convention against Tillman. It is with this object in view that the straightouts should organize and work. The August convention has settled nothing except the primary question. The work that is accomplished between the present tite? and the assembling of the September convention will decide the contest.

The daily Sun—Tillman organ—says:

cide the contest.

The daily Sun—Tillman organ—says:
To sum up the results of the convention there will be no primary for 1890. There will be a primary for 1892. "fleform," the executive committee with a Tillman complexion, has been substituted for the old orthodox committee. There will be no split or bolt in the sense of a separate and independent ticket as are predicted in advance of the event. The August convention has settled everything."

MISSISSIPPI'S CONVENTION.

Appointment of the Election Committee-

The State Printing. JACKSON, Miss., August 14.-[Special.]-The convention decided to let the convention printing out to the lowest bidder, and refused seat to Hon. J. Wheat, who claimed a seat being elected from the new county of Pearl River. The standing committees were appointed. The elective franchise and apporionment and election committee, which is to deal with the chief subject for which the contion was called, is as follows: Messrs. LAGRANGE, Ga., August 14 .- [Special.]-There was considerable disposition on the part of many of the delegates to the state agricultural convention to stampede to Atlanta and home last night and this morning, but it was effectually checked by Secretary R. A. Nisbet, who refused to stamp their return tickets until the convention adjourned. The executive com mittee at their meeting last evening authorized the secretary to stamp the tickets of all delegates who were sick, or who had news from home that required their immediate return. Secretary Nisbet says this action of the executive committee developed more sickness than ever broke out in the same length of time in the most dreadful cholera or yellow

This is the largest attendance of the executive committee in years, there being thirty-five of them present out of a possible forty-four. There were only twenty-seven of them present last year at Hawkinsville. It is the largest at-nce of delegates also.

The Morning Session The convention was called to order by President Northen in the chapel of the La-Grange Female college at 8:23 o'clock a. m. It was opened with a prayer by President Rufus W. Smith, of the LaGrange Female college.

Rufus W. Smith, of the LaGrange Female college.

Colonel A. M. Walker, of Carsonville, Taylor county, was then introduced by President Northen and delivered an able and comprehensive address upon "Practical Dairy Farming in Georgia." His address was full of valuable information on the subject and was well received. At its conclusion he answered several queries from different members in regard to his modes and methods. Professor J. S. Newman, of Auburn, Ala., asked him if he ever used the cream separator, and upon Colonei Walker replying that he had not, Professor Newman very clearly explained the method to the convention. Delegate Carmichael also spoke on the subject. Major M. L. Branch moved that at 11 o'clock the convention proceed to elect its officers. It was almost unanimously carried.

PROFESSOR NEWMAN SPEAKS.

President Northen then introduced Professor J. S. Newman, of the Agricultural and Mochanical College of Auburn, Ala., as a man whom Georgia had suffered a serious less in giving him to Alabama. Professor Newman said in substance:

The whole tendency of the "old education" has been towards mental training through abstract thought and reasoning. The concrete was beneath its notice.

The whole tenuestey of the "old education" has been towards mental training through abstract thought and reasoning. The concrete was beneath its notice.

Part of the boy only was sent to school—some faculties were trained and developed, others were totally neglected. The memory and reasoning faculties were trained observation and physical training were neglected.

The object of education was, first, to train the whole boy mentally, morally and physically to use his faculties; second, to make useful Christian citizens. It should not only train, but instruct.

Teach them not only to know something, but to do something.

He compared the study of classics and abstract mathematics with study of sciences as trainers of the mind—as educators and instructors.

The former was devoted to the study of man's method of thought and expression—the latter to God's thought and expression—the latter to God's thought and expression when the farm?

Agricultural colleges are alding in the revolution by teaching physics, botany, chemistry, geology, civil and mining engineering, drawing, hiology, agriculture and mechanics.

There should be object teaching—not neglect the old, but supplement with the new.

Why do boys leave the farm? The school system tends to lead them away. They come to us with a smattering of Latin, etc. This agricultural education must commence in the common schools.

We need farm, garden and stock schools in every county. France has 30,000 grammar schools; Sweden 22,000 children in such schools, Austria 8,000. The difficulties in the way are the negro and the middle men and tramps. Our training all leads away from the farm—it must educate to the farm.

The influence of polytechnic schools—infusing new industrial life—commence to bend the twire new industrial life.—commence to bend the twire men and tramps.

and the middle men and tramps. Our training all leads away from the farm—it must educate to the farm.

The influence of polytechnic schools—infusing new industrial life—commence to bend the twig in the common school, excite an interest in the study of nature in the child.

What does the average farmer know about either? Yet he is blindly handling all of them.

Lead the boy into the pleasant paths of inquiry into nature's secrets. Make a well-rounded development. The state can well afford to educate producers. The increased production will reimburse her a thousand fold. Let us paint our future with educated mechanics and farmers.

Among many forcible things Professor Newman said that the ignorance of the farmers as a class upon matters which most virtually affected their existence was most appalling. It should be a existence was most appalling. It should be a work of pride to us to see that our boys have better facilities than we. The great fault is that in many of our great institutions of learning our boys are taught that everything connected with the farm is the merest

SOME RESOLUTIONS. Upon the close of Professor Newman's speech, Colonel Redding introduced a resolution that the addresses delivered this morning by Professor Newman and Colonel Northen be published at once. The resolution passed.

A resolution, introduced by Professor J. W. Glenn, amended by Colonel R. J. Redding, was passed.

The following resolution was introduced by Hon. W. L. Glessner, of Americus: "Resolved, That the farmers of Georgia desire and demand an efficient system of common schools for a term of not less than six months in each year, and are willing to bear their proportionate share of a reasonable and equitable taxation for that purpose."

Professor H. C. White made a telling speech during the discussion upon the great question of education. He heartily commended President Northen's addition to the state fair of having a school exhibit at that state fair of having a school exhibit at that place. He said that every man here was thoroughly axious that the children of Georgia be educated. He said that he salvation and perpetuation of America's great republic depended upon properly educating the people and thus filling our land with a happy and contented population. GOVERNOR GORDON SPEAKS.

After Professor White had concluded his talk, at 10:30 o'clock, Mr. M. J. Hatcher, of Bibb, said that he noticed Georgia's distinguished governor upon the floor of the house, and moved that he be invited to the stage. Governor Northen said that he had not noticed Governor Gordon's presence in the house, and the motion was unanimously carried without being put.

As this man, whom it has so often delighted the people to honor, ascended the stage, the cheers in the hall were tu-

These delegates with what were here before simply overran the town, but LaGrange proves equal to the emergency and all are well housed and taken care of. There are 126 delegates stopping at the hotel where your correspondent is, and such is its crowded condition, that its clever proprietor, Mr. L. M. Park, went out in town last night and slept on the sofa in a weighbert prolifering adderests his hal. earthly things. In monarchies the responsibility rested upon the executive, but in a republic the responsibility rests upon everyone who casts a ballot, and there was no shirking of that responsibility. The people were particeps criminis if they permitted an unworthy administration. If special privileges be granted and if compensation for those privileges be not adequate and universal then wrong has been committed. This was a government of, for and by the people, and if any wrongs have been committed by granting special rights and privileges it was a violation of the fundamental thoughts and purposes of this government, as this government was for all classes. In the silence of the midnight it was whispered that wrongs had been perpetrated on the tillers of silence of the midnight it was whispered that wrongs had been perpetrated on the tillers of the soil, and that they paid almost as much taxes as their farms yielded clear profit. The general then asked how these wrongs were to be remedied. He dwelt upon the necessity of harmony—harmony among themselves; harmony with their neighbors; and lastly but perhaps most essential, sectional or national harmony.

harmony with their neighbors; and lastly but perhaps most essential, sectional or national harmony.

He had no fears that he would be misunderstood. His advocacy of their doctrines was not new to him or them. In his speeches for fifteen or twenty years ago, they would say he had come over to the Farmers' Alliance. But it was no new haptism to him—he had not plunged.

He hoped to see the day when the tillers of the soil all over the union were united to secure these great governmental reforms.

He defined statesmanship as a high order of common sense, with wisdom to discern the right and courage to maintain it.

He denounced the present financial systems, and urged them to agitate until the country was fully aroused.

The farmers must protect their interests and fight for their welfare, whether they fight for the subtreasury bill or not; they must fight and get it or something better. They must not quarrel about the road they want, just so they got where they were going. Especially must there be no divisions amongst themselves. They must have their business done; they must frage the ship of state would sail to universal freedom. He paid a glowing tribute to Hon. W. J. Northen, whom he designated as a wise leader.

GORDON ENDORSED FOR THE SENATE.

At the conclusion of Governor Gordon's speech, Captain J. McC. Bryan, of Oglethorpe, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That this convention hereby most heartily endorses the candidacy of that grand man, for the council's of the nation in the senate of the United States, the Hon. John B. Gordon.

This resolution was read, and as soon as he could be heard, the Hon. T. J. Lyon, of Bartow, seconded the resolution. It was unanimously adopted.

nomination, and it was unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

Dr. H. H. Cary, of Troup moved that a recess be taken to allow the districts to suggest names as members of the executive committee from their dristrict.

Carried.

After the recess, the following gentlemen were suggested from the different districts, as vice presidents and members of the executive committee, and elected:

VICE PRESIDENTS.

Fiast district, J. O. Davis; second district, A. Q. Moody: third district, J. H. Black; fourth district, R. E. Benson; fifth district, W. L. Peek; sixth district, E. C. Ransey; seventh district, J. district, George H. Jones; tenth district, James Barrett. Colonel J. O. Waddell, from the executive committee, then reported that that body had that morning elected Mr. R. W. Jemison, of Macon, as secretary of the society. Mr. Jemion had received twenty-three votes out of a possible thirty-five, and by motion, his election was made unanimous. The announcement of Mr. Jemison's election was greeted with tre mendous applause.

AGAINST THE FORCE BILL.

Untle Tommie Fleming, of Baker, introduced the following resolution:

Resolved, That this committee urge our representatives and senators in congress to use all honorable means in their power to prevent the passage of the bill now pending before the United States senate, known as the election or force bill, and we further request all business men, especially merchants and bankers, to join us in this petition.

When Mr. Fleming read his resolution some one in the audience spoke up and told him the force bill was already defeated. "Oh," said he, "don't you believe anything you see in the papers."

Mr. W. S. Coleman, of Cedartown, then offered the following resolution, which was unanimously carried:

Resolved, That this society hereby tender its thanks to the Hon. W. J. Northen, its honored president, for his able and successful management of the society's affairs, and we esteem it a privilege to express its confidence in him as a patriotic citizen and as a friend of the society.

This resolution was carried amid thunderous applause.

THAT DOLLAR FEE.

Colonel Felix Corput brought before the convention the fact that the collection of the dollar for secretary's stamping tickets, suspended by his resolutions at the Hawkinsville convention, was still being enforced. The explanation upon this matter was made by President Northen and Secretary Nesbitt—that the resolution was contrary to the constitution of the society, and that a regular proceeding would be necessary to change the applause.

ceeding would be necessary to change the constitution.

Hon T. J. Lyon, of Bartow, moved the suspension of the collection of the dollar fee at this session of the society, and that all who had paid it have their money refunded. Car-He also gave notice that at the next meeting of the society he would introduce a resolu-tion to abolish the payment of this stamping fee. The selection of a place for the holding of the next convention was announced as the next thing in order. Hon. Mr. Williams, of Ellaville, nominated his city in a glowing tribute to town and section. Mr. W. G. Whidby introduced a resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the executive committee be re-quested to formulate some plan to stimulate the organization of agricultural clubs in each county in the state, and county fairs in each county held in the interest of each other, and of the state fair. ate a pian for establishing an agricultural school in each county.

COLONEL WADDELL SPEAKS.

At this juncture Colonel Waddell was loudly called for by the audience, and responded in a very pretty speech of thanks and acknowledgments of his appreciation of the honor conferred upon him. The colonel gave the convention a clear, straightforward elegants. the convention a clear, straightforward, eloquent talk, and the applause with which he was greeted, and the attention with which he was listened to, evince the love and esteem in which he is held by the horny-handed sons of talk in Correle which he is held by the horny-handed sons of toil in Georgia.

Upon motion, the convention, at 12:30 o'clock, adjourned to meet in Ellaville, Ga., the second Wednesday in February, 1891.

The scene after the adjournment of the convention beggars description. There was a perfect stampede among the delegates to get something to cat and catch that one train for Atlanta, and just 217 delegates and four or five newspaper men caught the train, filling even the baggage car to overflowing. About half of them had to stand up all the way to Atlanta.

of them had to stand up all the way to Atlanta.

Many of the delegate remained over in La-Grange to go out and see the wonderful fortybales-to-the-acre farm of Mr. George W. Trutt, of Troup, that has so often and so elaborately been made famous by the secular and agricultural press of the state.

LaGrange has made herself more famous than ever by having this convention assemble in her midst. Her well known hospitality, and courteous consideration of all who happen in her precincts has been intensified and emphasized, and the delegates all went home in love with her people, her climate, her colleges and her natural and acquired beauties. The toat of the day among the farmers of Georgia is "LaGrange and Troup county."

The selection of new officers made by the conyention seems to give universal satisfaction.

Judge R. S. Sherman, of Upson, was a notable member of the convention. He is a planter both the old school, an old confederate veteran and was judge of the old inferior court in ante-bellum days.

Mr. L. M. Park, the indefatigable proprietor of the LaGrange hotel, is certainly an ideal host. The delegates vote him the cleverest and most obliging man in the business. Two of the most notable alliancemen upon the floor of the convention were Colonel W. L. Peek, of Rockdale, and Colonel L. F. Livingston, of Newton.

of Rockdale, and Colonel L. F. Lavingston, or Newton.

You could distinguish the congressmen that were certain of the nomination by their childlike and bland smite.

Professor Newman stated this morning that the Agricultural and Mechanical college in Auburn, Ala., today had 104 pupils, where six years ago it had only two. He said it showed the interest beginning to be manifested in agricultural education.

Professor H. C. White's little talk this morning oneducation, seconding Professor Newman's talk, beginning to be manifested in agricultural education.

Professor H. C. White's little talk this morning omeducation, seconding Professor Newman's talk, was highly enjoyed and very instructive. He brought down the house when he said if the farmer's boy was not as good as anybody's boy he would like to know why. He made a deep Impression by his clear ideas on farming.

During the exercises of the first day, President Northen said that the convention had the distinguished honor of meeting in the most elegant chapel the body had ever assembled in—the Southern Female college chapel. The hall was artistically decorated with pictures, statuary, drapery, flowers and agricultural products, the latter coming chiefly from the well-known farm of George W. Truitt, of Troup county. The college threw open all the buildings to the visitors, who inspected the various features of interest. Among the attractive departments, were the laboratory, the museum, the library, the art studies, the mounted telescope, the dressmaking and kindergarten departments, the electric light plant and the waterworks, and the new college building. The equipments of the college are very elaborate and complete, and the present enlargement of the buildings gives ample accommodations. The grounds, with rows of stately elms and giant oaks, with a velvety carpet of grass, interspersed with playing fountains, are beautiful and most inviting. The faculty numbers twenty-two. The music class last session consisted of 178 private pupils, and it was by pupils of this class that the concert last night was given. Professor Cox informs us that 178 boarders are expected to attend the college this fall, besides a large local patronage. The handsome souvenir and catalogue, published by the college, illustrate the enterprise of the institution, and will doubtless greatly enlarge its patronage, as they also heighten the general esteem in which it is held.

The second day's exercises of the convention were held in the chapel of the LaGrange Female college. This sollege i tract to conduct the music of the Fredmont Chautanqua.

This school enjoys an enviable reputation for its vocal music, and it was the regret of many that its faculty could not be present to contribute their songs to the enjoyment of the delegates.

The situation and conveniences are admirably adapted to the purposes of a female boarding school, having large grounds, electric lights, waterworks, etc.

Quay and the Force Bill. Boss Quay's plan to shelve the force bill is not the result of any patriotic impulse on his para. If the move he has made is no: a trap set for the democrats, it is sluply the result of a conference with the party managers, including President Harrison.

These people are not patriots. They are partisons and sectionalists; they are conspirators she would gladly turn the whole youn over to the horrors of a race war, if by that means they could retain their control of legislation. They ar, no whit better than Quay, whose south, sealed with guilt, refuses to respond to damning charges against his

In other words, the republican leaders have been brought face to face with the netive and energetic opposition to the force bill which THE CONSTITUTION has stirred up all over the country. As a practical politician, Mr. Quay is trying to get his party out of the dilemma in which it ands itself. The business men of the north, having discovered that t south is resenting this infamous bill a blow aimed at its best interests dustrial as well as political, are arms against it, and have ma opposition felt in the most their way. We W common with our contemporary either d regret to see the last veteran of mak ide pass from the scenes he helped to rthly danger of such an event happenu the case of a union veteran.

The yearly pension statistics of the govment clearly show that, so far from there being any truth in the statement that the union veterans are dying out, they are rather increasing in the land; and if the pension list may be taken as authority, we would be warranted in saying that the last veteran will not cross over the river in the next two hundred years, if indeed he shall succumb at that time.

This is not meant to be humorous, although It may appear so, neither do we wish to deny the union veteran the honor and wealth he deserves; but it has been computed that the annual cost to the government five years bence on account of pensions will exceed the enormous sum of $340,000,000-not solely on account of the fact that pensions are being doubled to individuals, "for service rendered." but that new individual applications are pouring in on the government every day, and men who never shouldered a musket nor smelt gunpowder during the war are posing as veterans and demanding recogni-

And now it is proposed, ere the last veteran leaves us, to establish a new order, to be known as "Sons of the Preservation, or Sons of the Union." The veterans will, therefore, be represented by their descendants in this organization; so it may be said that neither they nor their pensions will ever die. Let not our veteran contemporaries be troubled, neither let them be afraid. The veterans and their pensions will go on forever.

The Rope Route, or the Electric?

The execution of the murderer, Kemmler, by electricity-or rather, the attempt to execute him by that means—has given rise to considerable discussion as to the best method of putting criminals out of the world.

The press is divided in its opinion. It is claimed by certain papers that the electric method has not had a fair trial, and by others that the trial was fair, from the fact that so many experiments and tests had been made with the electric machine before the power was applied to human life.

We have already expressed our opinion as to the bungling manner in which Kemmler was "put awas," and if the experience to which he way subjected will be the experi-ence of other unfortunates, it must be said that the exectrical machine will be one of slow tor/ure, and as such should be abolshed. The rope is certainly more effective and not half so cruel.

While there is no doubt that the speedy as a grectual execution of criminals by this new and swf a method might have a tendency to reflice crime, still, the national protesis which have been coming into the newspe.po-s since the execution of Kemmler must nave their weight, and until this "infernal machine" can do its work with more nestness and dispatch, it must be relegated. to the rear, and condemned criminals must go by the old-time rope route.

From ministers of the gospel, from men of ill orders and conditions, we hear condemnation of the method by which Kemmler was taken out of the world. The fact that the electric light companies were opposed to this method counts for nothing. The fact which seems to impress itself upon the public mind is that the man was tortured to death, and after death, his unclaimed body was thrown like a dog's into a ditch of quick lime, where it was speedily consumed. All this is repulsive, and has naturally aroused public senti-

And still another feature to which the public objects is the secrecy of such execuons. The whole method seems to be horrible, and in the light of what we know, the rope route seems infinitely preferable to this new and secret engine of death, which seems wofully inefficient for the work for which was designed.

nagnitude of the pageant was litthan marvelous, when it is re ered that it was the product of only weeks' work. Exactly twenty-five s ago vesterday the midsummer festiral was suggested by THE CONSTITUTION, and exactly twenty-three days ago the preliminary organization was effected. Exactly three weeks ago active work was begun on the enlistment of floats, and since then the multitudinous displays have been conceived and brought into shape. It was a revelation and an inspiration. The whole thing was astonishing. Hardly a man outside the management had any conception of the magnitude of the pageant until he saw it. Even those who have worked upon it night and day for three weeks were surprised. They had in good faith made predictions that strained the credulity of their friends, but the reality, in its whole effect, went beyond their most sanguine expectations.

This pageant opens Atlanta's eves and shows her opportunity. This magnificent rans of the union army are product of three weeks' work shows what , and that in fifty years, at the may be done with a year's preparation. On a set effort Atlanta can surpass anything on record.

The suggestions of yesterday's procession are wonderful. They show what nous, we are persuaded that there is telling effects may be produced by a combination of the artistic and industrial features in a pageant. The strength of originality was there. It is the unanimous wish of the people of Atlanta that this thing be perpetuated. The desire has already found expression in the call. for a meeting of the executive compattee this afternoon to effect a permarent organization. This comes as a matter of

A Befut died Contemporary.

The San Francisco Chronicle has been reading us z lecture on "Conditions in the South." The Chronicle's sermon is based upon a test which recently appeared in The American Grocer, and which is as follows: The conditions of the south are such that until the relored people have grown in intelligence, toleration and virtue, the white race must neces-scrily be the dominant race.

The Chronicle, which is supposed to understand thoroughly what it is talking about, takes offense at the idea of whit domination in the south, or anywhere else, and proceeds to deliver itself in this fashion;

What, then, is meant by the dominant race:
And if it be right for the whites to be the dominant race in the south, why is it not equally right in the north? When we speak of a dominant political party we use the expression correctly, for in that case the minority is conclusively presumed to have consented to the rule of What, then, is meant by the dominant race? sively presumed to have consented the majority, until, at least, an enrity, until, at least, an ensuing election, rity rules by and with the consent of the . In the south, however, will any one at the whites rule by and with the consent of the negroes? Does not every one know that it is against their consent and in spite of their efforts to oppose domination? And in what does this domination consist? It is not the domination of superior intelligence or virtue, or patriotism, nor is it the domination of strong

It is surprising that so intelligent a new paper as the San Francisco Chronicle should ask such foolish questions, and make such reckless assertions. At any cost the whit would be the dominant race in the north, and in that "liberal" section it is noticeable that, for all the boasting that is done, the negro has fewer privileges than he has in the south. The white race is dominant

Especial attention is called to the last paragraph. In one editorial the writer makes charges which he refutes in another. Comment is unnecessary. In one nstance there is not equal liberty and freedom in this country, and in the next we find the writer declaring that there is no such thing now as "domination of the master over the slave," for that "the relation him. has ceased to exist," and "the political rights of all are equally protected, without regard to race, color, or previous condition of servitude!"

But discussions of such questions very rarely accomplish the good intended. We would, however, advise The Chronicle to be more guarded in its remarks, or, at least, to be well informed before it becomes critical. Without discussing fully the question which its sermon suggests, we have merely desired to show how self-contradicting a great newspaper can be when it discusses affairs of which it knows nothing, or very little.

is safe to say that a more indignant erowd never assembled than the thousands ho, after suffering untold discomfort to get o Chautauqua night before last, were clamoring around the Georgia Pacific depot at midnight to get back to the city.

By the advertised schedules every person who went to Chautauqua Wednesday should have reached Atlanta by 11 o'clock at the latest. Instead of that, it was long after that hour that those who wanted to get back even succeeded in getting away from the Chautauqua station. Hundreds left the depot in disgust to find quarters for the night as best they could, many being forced to sleep in the auditorium of the Chautauqua. THEY ARE VERY ANGRY OVER THE COMPROMISE ON THE TARIFF BILL. BUT QUAY WILL HOLD THEM DOWN.

A Red-Hot Republican Caucus to Defeat Quay's Resolution—But It Adjourns Without Action—Other News.

Washington, August 14 .- [Special.]-The epublican senatorial caucus tonight adjourned after a stormy session of two hours and a half, without action on the Quay resolution to postpone the force bill to the short session. The advocates of the bayonet bill, Jed by the hot-headed and impetuous Spooner, of Wisconsin, and the violent Hoar, of Massachusetts, implored, beseeched and even threatened the "traiters," as the force bill bolters are called by the administration organs, in order to induce them to withdraw their opposition to the consideration of the bill at this session, but Quay's phalanx of fifteen stood firm. It was evident from the first that they could neither be induced nor seduced from their position.

SPOONER AND HOAR HOWL.

Spooner and Hoar urged that it would place the party in an utterly indefensible position, after the house and the president had been committed to the bill, for the senate to hoist the white flag, without making a show of fight for the measure in that body. But Mr. Aldrich, who assumed the leadership of the Quay forces in the caucus, told his colleagues plainly that the postponement of the force bill was absolutely necessary to insure the passage of the tariff bill and that he deemed it of paramount importance to the industries affected by the McKinley bill that it should be passed at once. But other senators openly resented the threats that had been made by ! Reed and his followers at the other end of the capitol and the efforts of the administration mouthpieces, The New York Tribune and The Philadelphia Press. to dragoon the supporters of the Quay resolutions into its abandonment.

SOME BITTER SPEECHES.

Some very hot-tempered speeches were made on both sides, but the opponents of the resolution, who realized that they were making a losing fight, were afraid to you on the proposition, and the caucus adourned without action. A committee appointed to consider the matter further, but the Quay crowd assert unequivocally that they hold the whip in hand and the administration crowd will have to vield gracefully, if they will, but yield they

AN AGREEMENT IMPOSSIBLE.

By Associated Press.

The fourth in the series of republicar senatorial caucuses was held at the capitol tonight and was as ineffectual as any of the preceding caucuses as far as definite results are oncerned. It was the most important caucus yet held, the most largely attended and the ost pointed in the matter of speeches made Thirty-nine senators were present and with he exception of Mr. Cullom, who was ill, and Mr. Sawyer everybody remained until the adjournment, a very unusual proceeding. There was an extreme diversity of views manifested and the caucus adjourned simply be cause an agreement was impossible. It was a very inharmonious meeting. QUAY AND CAMERON SPEAK. Quay and Cameron both made speeches, and strongly represented the political inexpediency of doing anything with the federal election bill at present, and urged the necessity of an adjournment from a party standpoint. Mr. Aldrich also was on the side of those who desired an adjournment, and was spokesman for those senators who view the embarrassment and delay over the tariff bill as outweighing all other considerations in deciding icy to be pursued. PLUMB DEAD-SET AGAINST THE BILL. Mr. Plumb also spoke, and it is understood pposed the election bill which has caused these numerous caucuses. Hoar and Spooner were champions. The latter made a strong speech which some denominated "reading the riot act." He warned the senators that they must meet the issue squarely. The election bill must be passed now at this session or not at ail. It would be futile to go before the country with any statement that this bill would be passed at the short session. It was of supreme importance that it should be passed at once. His remarks brought out sharp retores from several opponents of the bill. QUAY HAS FIFTEEN FOLLOWERS. The discussion showed that there was a greater number of senators than has been generally supposed, who, for one reason or another, are willing to adjourn without the election bill being acted upon. The number of these senators is placed at fifteen.

Finally, about 10:30 o'clock, adjournment was proposed, and was finally forced by a majority vote. This was the only vote taken. * THE SENATORS SILENT. A general understanding prevailed among the senators that nothing should be given to the public as to the caucus, and they referred all newspaper men to Senator Edmunds, who is well known as an opponent of publicity in such matters. The Vermont senator was chairman of the caucus.

But it is not probable that the scheme of reciprocity will be extended any further than this for the present, at least.

DENNING WILL BE CONFIRMED The postmaster general received Inspector Hays's report on Denning, and it was favorable, Mr. Hays saying that, upon investigation, he was satisfied that there was no reason why Denning should not be postmaster at Augusta. Wanamaker sent it to the senate why Denning should not be postmaster as Augusta. Wanamaker sent it to the senate postoffice committee, with a recommendation that Denning be confirmed. Unless the reported movement to set Denning aside materializes, Denning will be confirmed.

Mr. Grimes introduced a bill permitting the Alabama, Georgia and Florida railroad to construct a bridge across Flint river, near Bainbridge.

THE GRAND ARMY'S APOSTLE TANNER

AND THE MEN WHO LOVE HIM.

A Noble Order Captured by the Politicians

WHO TURN IT TO THEIR OWN USES

The Dear Brother Brought Back to Life.

A STORY OF MEAGHER'S BRIGADE.

Boston, Mass., August 14.-[Special.]-Tho Grand Army men have possession of Boston this week.

They are to be met with on every corner in jovial knots, the members of the different commands seeking each other out, and renewing old acquaintances.

While looking upon the parade I was forcibly reminded of the fact that there are soldiers and-soldiers. Thousands of earnest men were there, gathered from every one of the "loyal" states, who fought for their convictions, and keep up the memory of their triumph as a sacred legacy.

The political soldier, however, is here in full force—the men who fought for a price during the war, and who have made their military records merchantable ever since. Their ma-nipulations helped to prolong the war, while it was in existence, in order that they might make fortunes through sutler shops, or work themselves into higher commissions through political influence. When the era of big bounties and collosal contracts was over, these judicious patriots at once set in upon the pen-sion bureau, and have kept pegging away at the treasury until now the pension roll runs into the hundreds of millions. Not content with pensioning those who had contracted diswith pensioning those who had contracted dis-abilities in the line of service, the list has been extended until it is almost possible for deser-ters to be allowed claims side by side with the men who served until honorably discharged. In fact, an attempt was made during the present session of congress to admit to the pension roll the names of men who had been dishonor ably discharged from the service.

For this wild extravagance and utter disregard of the pockets of the tax-payers the Grand Army is responsible. Almost every post in the country was a republican political headquarters. The great hobby was an increase of the pension allowance. The most worthless vagabond in the community, who happened to the accident of having served in the federal army, could get the endorsement of his local post. Of course there were honest men who dissented from this, but the republican party had to be subserved, and the congressman who refused to push even the most disreputable claim was threatened with the vengeance of the Grand Army in the next election. Thus it continued until the reading of pension bills in congress became a farce. A halt was called by President Cleveland. who for the first time began to apply the veto to this robbery of the public treasury under the cloak of patriotism. The Grand Army took umbrage at once, and in every post President Cleveland was openly denounced. A Grand Army gathering in Wheeling, West Virginia, deliberately insulted the picture of the president of the union, and refused to march under a banner which bore his name.

The republican party leaders were not slow to cultivate this appeal for boodle, and their nomination for the presidency was decided in favor of the man who had thrown himself most unreservedly into the hands of the pension-grabbers. During his canvass General Harrison wept tears over the pitiable condition of the poor soldier. I happened to be on the train which bore Harrison's old regiment from Indianapolis to the Terre Haute rally in October, 1888. A big, beardad veteran created intense enthusiasm by declaring that General Harrison would see that the pensions were made large enough so that no old soldier would ever have to work.

The appointment of the notorious Tanner as pension commissioner was in response to these pledges. Tanner made the mistake of taking a legal friend into parmership, thus incurring the enmity of the other sharks who were lying around for fees, and he had to go. This recalls the fact that Tanner was the toast at the last Grand Army gathering, held in Milwaukee. The commissioner had sent word that all "the boys" should be taken care of. This insured him a royal welcome upon his arrival. Emboldened by his mastery over his fellow b lers, he grew eloquent in advocacy of such an extension of the pension roll as would keep upon the list the widows of dead soldiers, no matter how often they remarried. Cheers followed this, when, growing confidential, the commissioner continued:

"In my office I have the best means of knowing the necessity of giving these pensions. I get letters every day of some poor woman being forced to sell her virtue for want oi money. To save the widows of our dead brothers we must give them pensions."

This brutal assault upon the virtue of thou. sands of pure women was just a little too much. Tanner might lie on the south, might turn the pension office over to pension attorneys, might lead an unholy raid upon the public treasury, but this time he had overstepped the mark. He was called to order, his statement was repudiated by several speakers, and the plea of intoxication was made in behalf of the unfortunate commissioner. The newspapers were appealed to to suppress the incident, and most of them did so. But the story could not be kept secret, and it finally reached the pub-

It is unfortunate that such an organization as the Grand Army of the Republic should have fallen into the hands of politicians and pension boodlers. Tannerism is now its dis-tinguishing feature, and must continue to be so until it ceases to put a money value on pa_

This evening, in the Adams hotel, I mingled among a party of genuine veterans, who are not responsible for the present bad repute of the Grand Army. Two men, remarkably alike, were the centre of attraction. They were brothers, named Dungan, and had served on opposite sides during the war. James Dungan otld the story:

"Charles and I were born and raised in the city of Philadelphia. When quite a boy Charles went to New Orleans to enter business under an uncle, while I remained at home. When the war broke out I joined a Philadelphia regiment. I learned that my brother here had joined the Fifth Louisiana, in the confederate my. Strange to say the two regiments were thrown against each other more than a dozen times. In one of the skirmishes leading to the battle of Fredericksburg, we met the Fifth Louisiana and captured quite a number. I at once began asking them if they knew anything furnished with a detail, and my Louisiana friend was permitted to accompany us to iden-tify the body. As soon as I saw it I recognized it. Opening the dead soldier's shirt, I found a peculiar birth-mark which completed his identification. We dug a grave, and placing my mother's picture upon her dead boy's breast, we lowered it therein, and committed him to the head of Cod Therein.

"The day following we had another brush with the irrepressible Fifth Louisiana, and captured the balance of the regiment. Our boys began dividing rations with the prisoners, and for awhile general fraternity was estab-lished. One of the Louisiana boys, attracted my attention as he was frying his bacon at the camp fire. I moved toward him involuntarily. He looked around and dropping the meat into the fire, as he caught sight of me, he exclaimed: " 'James!'

"I stood bewildered—in a dream. I had buried my brother—identified by name, by re-semblance, birth-mark—yet here he was again in the flesh! "I told him the story. I saw his eyes twinkle as I spoke. 'Yes,' he said, 'there were two of us. The man you buried was born in New Orleans, and his resemblance to me was so marked that we were spoken of there as the twins. But here

I am, alive, and tired enough of war! "Through the influence of my colonel, who was a relative of Simon Cameron, I secured a furlough-and was permitted to take home the brother whom I was supposed to have buried, and restored him to the hands of our mother! "The joy of that house you can better imagine than I can describe.' Another veteran, who had witnessed the carnage of Fredericksburg, spoke of the charge of Meagher's Irish Brigade on Mary's Heights. He said:

"The brigade was resting at will awaiting the order to charge. Behind them was a long hedgerow. One of the men broke off a twig. and stuck it into his cap. The action became contagious, and soon nearly every man had a sprig of his beloved green in his cap. I observed one tall Irishman inserting the twig into his cap with great reverence.

"'What does all this mean?' I ventured to Irish brigade that fought through. "The poor fellow kept getting higher and higher in my estimation. At length the order came, and under the murderous storm of lead the gallant men rushed on to the destruction which awaited them." General Patrick A. Collins has grateful memories of the people of Atlanta. He speaks of Grady with reverence, and of John Falvey with enthusiasm. Of the political situation hereabout he said:

"The political situation in the New England states is in my judgment, substantially this: The valiant 18,000 in Vermont continue to march up the hill and down again, as poor Grady described them. The Maine democrats are only looking for a chance to use Napoleon's favorite tactics, and "whip the enemy in detail." In New Hampshire the parties seem to stand as rigid as the hills, but granite disintegrates, and we shall probably get one representative in congress. Rhode Island is democratic since her veters were released two years ago from the property qualication for voting. All her state officers and a majority of the legislature are democrats, and only proper ordinary effort is required to insure her electoral vote and her two senators in congress. Conit is only its miserable "borough system" which makes New Haven count only as much as the smallest hamlet in the legislature, that deprives us of two senators. We reduced the republican majority last fall in Massachusetts to 5000. We shall double our present demo-cratic representation in the next congress, and in 1892 we shall keep the enemy busy to hold the state. "The election bill, if passed, will prove a boomerang. It will injure its promoters here, and you can take care of yourselves in the

"I am only afraid that our majority will be too large in the next house. But large or small, the majority will be democratic."

The LeConte Pear Captures Fruit Men

About Thomasville. THOMASVILLE, Ga., August 13 .- [Special.]-The startling sales of the LeConte pear made here this summer are attracting universal attention. Many farmers have more money in hand than they ever saw before at one time. All other fruits have yielded to the disastrous season of last winter, but the LeConte is gallantly holding its own. Buyers have b here from all sections and the demand has far exceeded the supply at from $2 to $3 per crate. Excessive bearing last year and the late spring freezes this season have so mutilated the peach and other fruit trees that there will be a dearth of fruit throughout the state, but the vigorous and thrifty LeConte comes to the front with an ample supply of good, whole-some fruit for home use, and a considerable

An orenard of a few acres of this wonderful pear tree is worth more to a farmer each year than a large plantation cultivated in cotton. The profits from a LeConte orchard can be supplemented by planting the Keiffer pear, which is equally as hardy and prolific. This pear ripens in September, and will hang on the trees in good shipping condition for six weeks.

Parties purchasing trees should beware of buying indiscriminately from amateur nurserymen. Stock that is contaminated by descent from trees tainted with pear blight is to be carefully avoided, as they may possibly result in much loss to the buyer.

For several years Mr. Robert Alexander has been grafting different varieties of apples on LeConte stocks, and has succeeded beyond his highest hopes. These grow about six feet the first year and begin to bear well the third. So thrifty and fruitful have these trees proven that he has dug up all his apple trees and replaced them with young trees grafted on LeConte stocks.

Mr. Alexander does a large business in LeConte pears and other fruits at the Hammock nursery.

A Phantom Ball.

Macon, Ga., August 14.—[Special.]—A large party of Maconites will attend the grand phantom ball at the Elder house, Indian Spring, tomorrow night. Card's splendid orchestra, from Macon, will be present. Quite a number of belles and beaux from Atlanta, Griffin and Forsyth are also expected to be in attendance. The ballroom will be handsomely decorated for the occasion.

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

CASE IN SPALDING COUNTY SUPE-RIOR COURT.

The State vs. McCullock, for the Killing of J. H. Powell-A Jury Obtained-Taking the Evidence.

GRIFFIN, Ga., August 14.—[Special.]—The case of the state against M. M. McCullock, for the killing of J. H. Powell on March 7th, was begun today. The jury was obtained with less difficulty than was expected, although one hundred and fifty talsemen were summoned in hundred and fifty taisemen were summoned in addition to the regular panel. The jury was completed at 4 o'clock, and is composed as follows: Charles Watson, J. G. Smith, W. T. Kilgore, J. W. Snead, Z. M. Patterson, George B. Beecher, J. T. Bates, Colonel S. Grantland, W. S. Hayt, S. W. Williamson, J. T. Mitchell W. S. Hoyl, S. W. Williamson, J. T. Mitchell and B. H. Evans. Ten of them are farmers, one a retired physician and one a capitalist.

The jury is a good one and can be depended upon to administer justice in accordance with the evidence.

Four witnesses were examined the court adjourning at 7 o'clock tonight. Judge Boynton is going on as rapidly as possible and hopes to complete the case by Saturday. The evidence so far is the same as that reported in THE CONSTITUTION as taken before the coroner's jury on March 8th.

The prosecution is represented by Solicitor General Emmett Womack, Hall & Hunt, Stewart & Daniel and Colonel J. T. Ruther-ford, of Macon. The defense presents Colonels Dismuke, Mills and Hammond. It is evident from the examination of the witesses that both sides will contest hotly every inch of ground, and that the fight will be stub orn throughout.

The sprinklers Did Good Work. SPARTANBURG, S. C., August 14.-[Special.] About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon fire broke out in the picker room on the basement floor of the Spartan mills. There was a pile of waste near by, and the flames were spreading with alarming rapidity when the automatic sprinkler turned on the water and quickly extinguished the fire. Some little cotton was injured, but the whole loss will not exceed $200. The fire originated in the machinery and was probably the result of friction.

Mr. Snook's return from the northwest, recalls a story of ten years ago. Mr. Grady was then with THE CONSTITUTION and was a warm friend of Mr. Snook. He wrote of Mr. Snook's return from a visit to his old home in Virginia after a fifteen years' absence, and in connection with the name used "T. C. F. H. I. G." Letters in great numbers came to the office asking what the initials meant. Mr. Grady gave all the same answer—The Cheap-est Furniture House In Georgia. That caught ok's undying love for Mr. 6

Colonel Thibadeau and all his enumerators have Detective Ed Cason is wearing a series of small scratches on the side of his expressive face.

Thereby hangs a tale.

Several days ago Detective Cason, with his partner, was on a lay in the sixth ward. Thieves had been paying regular visits to Mr. Will Venable's refrigerator, carrying away chickens, butter, milk and everything else they could lay fingers on. About daylight the detective spotted a negro man moving silently off up the street, with a tin bucket in his hand and a corn-cob pipe between his teeth.

Detective Cason's partner came up about this time. With his help the enterprising secret service man gathered himself up, and with the remains of the old darkey's dinner hanging to his clothes, moved on toward the station house a much wiser man, but alas so sad.

He is now devoting his spare time in searching for the said negro. for the said negro.

After being hurt Mr. Hirsch was taken to his home on south Forsyth street, where his physician has been attending him ever since. He is still very sick from the effect of the injury, confined to his bed, but is improving steadily. He hopes to be out in a few days.

Mr. Hirsch's many friends will be sorry to learn of his mishap. Since being hurt his genial face has been greatly missed and many inquiries have been made concerning him.

at once.-C. H. Wells, Midville, Ga.

FROM OUR NOTEBOOK.

A Farmer and Horse Dealer.—Mr. Jere Hollis, the famous farmer and horse dealer of Bibb county and Macon, was in the city last night. Mr. Hollis has made a success in both branches of the business, and there is no man who has had more experience in these lines than he. Many friends in Atlanta were glad to meet him during his short stay in the city.

An All-Round Mayor.—Hon. John B. Felder, mayor of Americus, is in the city. Mr. Felder has held that honored position for many years, and has proven himself to be a real, live, all-round mayor in every sense of the word.

Secretary Nisbet.—There was no happier man in Atlanta last night than Hon. Bob Nisbet, of Bibb county, who was elected secretary of the State Agricultural Society, at LaGrange, yesterday. (Colonel Nisbet well deserves the position and will "Ill it with honor to himself and to the credit of the society."

Returned to Duty.—L. H. Everhart, of the United States navy, a son of the Rev. Dr. Everhart, of Decatur, left yesterday for his ship, the Kearsarge, now off Boston. He has been absent on account of ill health for some time, but Dr. Orme, his physician, thinks he is able to return to duty.

The Death of a Child.—Eddie May, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Smith, died at the residence of its grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Johnson, at Stone Mountain Thursday morning, age twenty months and fourteen days. They have the sympathy of the entire community over the loss of their dear one.

He Will Remove.—Mr. E. W. Blue, the famous "Pollar-a-Week" man, will remove to No. 70 Whitehall street. His present quarters, at Nos. 97 and 99 Feachtree street, have grown too small for his business, and that is the reason of the removal, which will occur about September 15th. Mr. Blue will leave for New York on Wednesday next, August 20th, for the purpose of laying in a large stock of goods for his new store.

A Prominent Farmer.—Mr. Will Camp, one of the largest farmers in Polk county, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Camp has made a great deal of money farming in the rich valley lands of Polk, and his success has been due to his in-domitable pluck and energy. A Happy Drummer.—Happy Bill Young, the only and original, is in the city. Mr. Young is an old Cedartown boy, but is now repesenting Messrs. McGee & Co., of Rome, and no knight of the grip is more universally beliked than happy Bill Young.

A Fine Tobacco Leaf—There is a magnificent to-bacco leaf on exhibition at Jacobe's cigar stand. It is 22 inches long by 16 inches broad. It was plucked from a plant on the farm of Mr. Johnson, near White Plains, and is as fine as any Virginia leaf.

off to Carterwille.—So proficient is Cherokee tribe in the work of the order that they have gained a state reputation as the best in performing the adoption degree. A week scarcely passes but what they are called on to visit other tribes in the state and exemplify the work. On last Friday night, Sachem S. C. Owens and S. T. Wiley, project, with several others, went to McDonough and adopted five members for Mojave tribe No 18, which has commenced with flattering prospects. Last night the working team went to Cartersville to work for Etowah tribe No. 18. They are also considering an invitation from Gainesville, and are wanted at Marietta next week, when a new tribe of Red Men will be instituted by the state organizer, W. H. Hafer. The following gentlemen went to Cartersville: S. C. Owens, T. W. Haney, J. F. Bradley, W. J. Shockley, A. H. Kent, E. L. Maxwell, J. T. Wiley, C. S. Spinks, C. L. Bradshaw, O. H. Windsor, J. R. McClellan, B. F. Teague.

Still Hopeful—Bailiff Merritt is still hopeful of catching Robert, the prisoner who escaped from him some time ago. The bailiff says he lost a prisoner once before by jumping through a car window, but he caught him again three months of the world.

Fulton County's Increase.—Tax Collector Loyd stimates the tax returns of Fulton county at $46,055,205.
Last year it was $40,615,229. The increase of $5,439,975 is the greatest ever known in the history of the state.

He Was Here .- Hon. Bridges Smith, Macon's He Was Here.—Hon. Bridges Smith, Macon's city clerk, was in Atlanta yesterday taking in the festival. Macon never has anything like it, and Mr. Smith came to Atlanta to see the evidence of the Gate City's thrift and progress. ECZEMA CHILDHOOD

When an infant my body broke out all over with an eruption or rash, which became more aggravated as I grew older. Every noted physician in our section was tried or consulted. When I came of age I visited Hot Springs, Ark., and was treated by the best medical men, but was not benefited. When all things had failed I determined to try S. S. S., and in four months was entirely cured. The terrible Eczema was all gone, not a sign left; my general gone, not a sign left; my general health built up, and I have never had any return of the disease. Geo. W. Irwin, Irwin, Pa.

HAWKINSVILLE, Ga., August 14 .- [Special.]-The democratic convention for the third con gressional district met here today. Every unty in the district was represented excep Lee. The convention met in the courthouse at 11:15 o'clock a. m., and was called to order by Hon, C. C. Smith, of Hawkinsville, chairman of the district executive committee, who delivered a short but ringing speech replete with true democracy. Captain J. D. Stetson, of Hawkinsville, and Messrs. J. T. Waterman of Hawkinsville, and J. H. Ryals, of Telfair, were elected secretaries. Hon. W. T. Hawks, of Sumter, nominated Hon, Charles F. Crisp for representative in the fifty-second con gress. His speech was very able and eloquent and met with a hearty reception by the con vention and provoked frequent applause. His statement that the third congressional district of Georgia would furnish the next speaker if the democrats should have a majority, was loudly applauded.

Hon. C. C. Smith seconded the nomination After a few timely words of Hon. J. E. S Shipp, of Dooly, Judge Crisp was unanimously

The following resolution, introduced by Captain John A. Cobb, of Sumter, was adopted without dissent:

Resolved, That we have noticed with pleasure and admiration the course in congress of our representative, John Charles F. Crisp, and give our hearty endorsement to all of his acts in his manful fight against the attacks of the republican party on the rights and interests of our people, especially against that injuitious measure known as the force bill, against which we heartily and most solemnly protest as unnecessary and calculated to create discord and trouble, where now only peace good order and prosperity reigns. We carnestly call upon-the people of the north, who desire a union of interest, sympathy and prosperity, as well as the states, to use their influence with their senators and representatives in congress to defeat this outrageous measure and all other purely sensational and shameful legislation.

On motion of Professor R. F. Watts, of Stewart, a committee of five was appointed to notify Judge Crisp of his renomination. The chair appointed Messrs. Watts, of Stewart; Cobb, of Sumter; Shipp, of Dooly; Hudson, of Webster, and Smith, of Pulaski.

NOTES FROM ALBANY

Peculiarities of the Fruit Season-Note and Comment.

ALBANY, Ga., August 14 .- [Special.]-Mr J. L. Acree has rather a peculiar peach tree in his orchard in Lee county. It bore as usual early in the season about thirty large and handsome peaches which have now matured. Lately, without any blooms whatever, peaches began to cover the tree. They appear on the end of the twigs and continue coming. There are now upon the tree fully one hundred peaches of different sizes which have thus grown without blossoming. This peculiarity is said to be quite frequently observed here among the peaches. The fruit thus produced is intensely sweet, though rather small in size, being about the diameter and appearance of the fruit of the almond.

Work is progressing rapidly upon the Albany and Cordele railroad, being now carried on on both ends of the line. Two sawmills are being erected at Swift and Cedar creeks by the contractors.

The steamer Montezuma has taken her first trip this week from Albany to Bainbridge. She is now simply a freight boat, but will doubtless be arranged with cabins for the ac commodation of passengers, as well as freight.
The cotton crop in this section has been much injured by the rust. The bolls are opening rapidly and the planters will be kept busy in keeping up with it.

The melon season being ended the LeConte pears have now taken their place in the market. Peaches have made their appearance at the fruit stores and are being brought to town in limited quantities from the surrounding country. The fig crop has been a bountiful one and the season has made them unusually luscious in flavor and sweetness. The pecan trees are loaded with nuts and the yield will be an unusually large one this year.

THE DOUGLAS CONVENTION.

The Action of the Fairburn Convention Denounced-Spelson Endorsed. DOUGLASVILLE, Ga., August 14 .- [Special. The democratic convention met in Douglas-ville today pursuant to a call of the executive committee of Douglas county, J. M. Brown in the chair. A preamble and resolutions were then offered, the substance of which was that at a certain convention held at Douglasville on July 23d, the Hon. A. J. Snelson was unanimously endorsed as the choice for senator of the thirty-sixth district of the democratic voters of Douglas county, provided he was the choice of Me riwether county and that A. J Snelson was allowed to name his own delegates; that when said delegates met at Fair burn, there were two sets of delegates' names presented to the convention—one by Dr. T. R. Whitly and one by the delegation containing Lang's name.

A vote as to which one was the proparly appointed delegate was had, which resulted in seating Dr. T. R. Whitly by a vote of twenty-seven for to twenty-seven against seating Whitly, by the arbitrary ruling of the chairman; that Douglas's nine delegates, Campbell and Coweta delegates and six from Meriwether then withdrew from the conven tion, and instructed our delegates to cast their vote for the Hon. A. J. Snelson at the con vention, which meets at Fairburn, on August 15th, and invite all true democrats to vote for him at the October election, and condemn the action of said T. R. Whitly, in that he had voted contrary to the instructions of the democratic voters of Douglas county; that we re endorse A. J. Snelson for senator, and affirm that he is the choice of Meriwether county. The resolutions were adopted by the unani mous vote of about four hundred of Douglas county's legal voters.

THE OTHER SIDE. The Terrell Men Claim a Good Working

Majority. DOUGLASVILLE, Ga., August 14 .- [Special. re was a meeting yesterday endorsing Dr. T. R. Whitley's action in Fairburn. There were 513 true democrats out of the 900 in the county endorsing him, giving Terrell a majority now of 150 to 200 in the county. Of the Snelson 400 claimed, there are included greenbackers and republicans. Some of the men who have been riding the county over for Snelson are republicans and greenbackers, and never vote the democratic ticket. Douglas has 1,300 votes. Snelson can't get over 400, as the alliance has only 360 to 390 votes, and there are a great many of the alliance who have already declared for Terrell. As it now star Snelson is endorsed by the alliance vote of 360 to 400 and Terrell will doubtless get the 800 or 900 other votes, giving Terrell on fair count, backers and republicans. The 500 or 600 demccrats refusing to act with them. So it is a fact the democracy of Douglass is still for Terrell.

NASHVILLE, Ga., August 14.—[Special.]—Yesterday the delegates from the second district met at the courthouse to consolidate the vote for representative. Mr. W. L. Kennon was nominated by a very decided majority to represent us in the next legislature. Delegates were also selected to attend the next senatorial convention, soon to assemble in Valdosta. The rule was voted down which has heretofore allowed the county entitled to has heretofore allowed the county entitled to the senator also to name him, and the delegates go uninstructed, only to get the best man in that county. The chairmen of the district ex-ecutive committees were also selected for the next two years.

The Rome Convention.

ADAIRSVILLE, Ga., August 14.—[Special.]— More or less anxiety is entertained by the voters of our section over the call for a mass meeting at Rome of the Jeffersonian demoretards to the Schersonan came-crats. This much is certain: If they succeed in bringing Dr. Felton out, Adairsville will give him a good vote, though Adairsville is in favor of peace in the democratic ranks, and many of Dr. Felton's friends do not want him to run. Others do.

Nominated Without Opposition

Convers, Ga., August 14.—[Special.]—In the primary here today, W. F. McDaniel, al-llance candidate for representative, received 266 votes. J. E. Nunnally, for the state senate from this district, received the same. Neither gentleman had any opposition, consequently everything was quiet and the vote small.

A CARD FROM HON, DAN G. HUGHES. Mr. Blount's Late Opponent to the Public

From the Macon Telegraph.

To those earnest and unselfish friends and sup porters who honored me with their votes in the late contest for the democratic nomination for congress, I desire to return my heartfelt and sin-cere thanks. It would be hard for me to overestimate the measure of my gratitude to them.
Would that I could take by the hand each true and worthy man who cast for me his ballot and tell him how truly and sincerely do I feel myself hon-ored by his confidence. To my opponents, also, who met me in several counties with courteous attentions, and fair and honorable treatment. there were many such, I return my hearty thanks. If there are those who, by falsehood and misrep resentation, or worse meth ods, met my candida in an undemocratic and unfair consciences, or in the absence of conscience, th

ompensation of time will inflict on then

To the executive committee of the sixth con-gressional district I will say that there should be a little more time between the opening and the conclusion of the canvass, if it is ever thought ad-visable to meet the people. A farmer of forty years' standing, I know something about traveling the roads, and not even a pair of seven-league boots will enable a man to meet the people of eleven counties in middle Georgia in eleven days. The canvass was limited to that time by a majority of counties in middle Georgia in eleven days. The canvass was limited to that time by a majority of the committee, and we are yet nearly three months to the election. Surely a few more days would not have been injurious in a free country where the people take an interest in the elections and in the character and capacity of candidates.

When I reflect that many of the conventions will not meet until next month, and that the canvass is still going on in several of the congressional districts, I can but feel that the extraordinary haste here subjects the committee to criticism, and some cay the error of partisanship. Between democrats, a democratic committee should so act as not to incur the suspicion of blas or partiality. I shall not, however, criticize the officers of my party. I shall vote for the nominee. I am not ashamed of my record in the late contest, and I repeat I am honored by the multitude of the good, the true and the pure who stood by me. I say this without disparagement to the multitude of the same character who supported my opponent; and will my friends in other counties pardon me when I say to the people of Twiggs county, where I was born, was reared, and among whom I have spent my life, how I value their unanimous support? Old men of my native county, at whose feet I learned the principles of truth and right; friends of my youth and manhood and the children of those friends, if ever I fortee great brotherhood of agriculturists and alliancemen to which I belong, I express my profound devotion, and to all fair-minded men I give the assurance I am, without resentment or regret, their friend and fellow citizen.

Macon, Ga., August 12, 1889.

DAN G. HUGHES. Macon, Ga., August 12, 1889. TODD WILL STICK.

He Will Run for Senator if He Has to Vote Himself.

Todd will stick. At Hapeville, yesterday, a meeting was held, the details of which bear with ipeculiar significance upon the race for senator from this district.

At that meeting Clayton county's alliance men were represented by Rev. Mr. King. Messrs. Jackson and Howell, of Fulton were there as representatives of the Fulton alliance. The senatorial race was discussed in its different phases, and it seem that a modest request was made that Mr. Todd, the Clayton county candidate should retire from the rac in the interest of some more available man. But he will not retire. The request, it is understood, came from the

The request, it is understood, came from the alliancemen in the other two counties of the district, they making the point that great opposition seemed to be manifested to Todd and some better Clayton man should be chosen. Todd is reported to have said at the meeting in reply to such a request that he would run if there were only two votes cast for him, and he would, if circumstances made it necessary,

So Todd will be a candidate for senator until And this brings out the issue of the rotation system more forcibly than ever before. As is already well-known it is Clayton county's time, in accordance with the privi leges of the rotation system, to name the next senator.

Mr. Todd is the man endorsed by Clayton. He will wage the issue for all it is worth, and as may be seen from the action of the Hapeville meeting, some fun may turn up yet.

Meantime the primary for electing delegates is gradually drawing near, and the matter will be decided permanently.

REUNIONS IN GEORGIA.

THE FOURTH GEORGIA MEETS AT MONTICELLO. And a Grand Time Is the Result - The Forty

sitizens of Jasper county. Thousands of people were here mingling with pleasant greetings, but above all enjoying to their full the happy, hearty salutations and cordial fellowship of these veterans who went at the first call and stood shoulder to shoulder in a conscientions determination of right. met today, some of them, for the first time since the historic sundown.

Twenty-five years have wrought many changes, and instead of soldiers, powder-burned, weather-beaten and footsore, the remnant of the gallant Fourth Georgia are grave, steady gray-haired citizens upon whom varied re ponsibilities rest.

With consciences clear of any wrong, these followers of the lamented Doles and the loved Cook, returned to their poverty-stricken nomes in 1865 and began anew the battle of life and have won a haven of rest. God bles them, these gallent men with hearts of oak and nerves of steel, who can in easy convers recount thrilling scenes of peril and hours of carnage that cause the listener to linger, with quickening pulse and quivering lip, in rapt attention.

What strange spell weaves itself into the very lives of the uninitiated as they listen to personal experience of closely contested bat-tle fields! Of what are people made, that their nature revel in deeds of valor and pulse quicken at the recital of events that swept the joyous sanlight from so many homes? That the youth of our land loves to hear of battles evidenced by the throngs of them in listening attitudes to some gray-haired man's thrilling words. REGIMENT HISTORY.

Colonel George Doles was elected first colonel of this renowned regiment. Colonel Dole came into the regiment as captain of Company H, from Milledgeville. He was promoted to brigadier general and while leading a charge at Cold Harbor was killed. None were braver nor truer than he, nor more loved by his com rades. They speak his name with tearful eye for "They never learned to love who never knew to weep."

General Phil Cook, our state secretary, was the next colonel. He was sergeant of Com pany I, from Macon, and was graded upward and made a brigadier general in 1863, and led the men where the shot and shell fell thick est. He lives today, loved by all who know him, and especially by these gallant sons of Mars, whom he led to many victories.

THE EXERCISES BEGIN. At 10 o'clock the immense audience was called to order by Mr. Willis Newton, under the large Sunday school association tent. The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Simeon Thorp, who was a lieutenant of Company C, from Twiggs county. His prayer was an earnest, hopeful belief of the south's prosperity, and especially welfare of the few who future were left to mingle in this association, so far removed from the turmoils and strife of war. Mr. E. L. Campbell, a veteran of Company G, made the address of welcome, which was to the point and much appreciated. Colonel W. T. Lane, a rising attorney and mayor of Monticello, made the address of come for the city. He is a fine orator and held his audience well in hand.

I T. Hester, of Company E, of Albany, made a fine address as response for the visiting

Then Colonel J. W. Preston, a veteran of the Fourteenth Georgia, Jasper's favorite son, but recently of California, made an elegant speech, when the programme called for Governor Gordon. He began by sta-ting that he much regretted, as he knew the people did, that Governor Gordon was not present. If he was here the people would one to feel proud that he came, for Georgia's Gordon was a man always ready. [Cheers.] "Sometimes," he said, "I wish that we could draw aside the curtain and look across the river and see those who have passed before. We would know that God Almighty never did damn a brave soldier. [Cheers.] They served their country as they deemed right. It was a duty that called them to their death. In California there is a socity called the blue and gray. I have met with them. They are upon terms of the closest friendship. This is right. We must be obedient to the powers that be. We can be friends to the brave men who wore the blue for brave men always re spect the brave."

The band played Dixie amid the greatest enthusiasm.

GENERAL COOK SPEAKS. Following Colonel Preston, General Phil Cook, the gray-haired veteran rose to speak to the multitude. There was such a turmult of cheering that for a while he could not be heard. He was in a happy mood and gave a few lively illustrations of these veterans. The au-dience continued the cheering that much of his speech could not be heard. The veterans crowded near and heard the words of patriotism that fell from his lips.

AN ATLANTA LADY. Mrs. A. H. Alfriend, of Atlanta, by the request of the veterans, recited "The Con-federate Gray." When the rich cadence of her voice rang out to the immense audience giving those thrilling sentiments, was it amiss that the tears were seen to roll down the cheeks of numbers of the veterans who stood in rapt attention to every word?

Following this, Professor Kilpatrick, a son of a confederate soldier, made a beautiful speech. The sentiments were beautiful and

The dinner was superb, not only the barbecue, which was so well and bountifully served, baskets from every hill and dale in Jasper county, and such variety; no baker's breads and cakes, but all homemade, wholesome, appetizing food. The cakes, jellies, preserves were true to their name—"all wool filling and a yard wide." Jasper never does things in a small way. She felt that she was honoring herself in giving to these veteran soldiers this alight token of her appreciation of their valor.

No Doubt of the Purchase Macon, Ga., August 14.—[Special.]—There is no doubt whatever of the Macon syndicate consummating the purchase of Cumberland island from Captain Bunkly at $75,000. They have paid down a large sum for the option of a privilege of closing the deal by November 13th next. There is no likelihood of the syndicate losing the money. It has applied for a charter and will proceed with the organization of the company at once and the total amount of the company at once, and the total ar of the purchase money will soon be paid.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., August 13.—[Special.]—About 3 o'clock on Monday morning, while the policemen were keeping vigil over the sleeping town, and the arc lights were still burning brightly, a young couple drove rapidly down Recod street. Broad street.

"Can you tell me where the ordinary lives?" asked the young man.

The friendly officer, who has been there himself took in the situation and piloted the young couple to the ordinary's residence, where they were furnished with a marriage license. The prospective groom sprang into the buggy and, with now and then an anxious glance over his shoulder to see if he was pursued, drove to the residence of 'Squire Tom Dewitt, in the lower part of the county. There they were married. The groom is Mr. Robert Lee Futh, and the bride is Miss Jennie Ashel, daughter of Mr. Noah Ashel, a successful farmer. The old folks objected, but the young

MR. RYAN'S DISAPPOINTMENT.

Mr. P. W. Ryan, manager of the Atlanta Wire and Iron Works, was the victim of a furny disappointment in his float yesterday.

Mr. Hyan's float consisted of a large wire arrangement, part of which was partitioned off and converted into a cage for the liaguar. Keeper Havens occupied a seat inside this cage with the beast, as the spectators of the parade doubtless remember.

On top of the cage Mr. Ryan had a place

On top of the cage Mr. Ryan had a place fixed up to accommedate a band of negro minstrels. But he was minus the minstrels, and that is where the situation comes in Mr. Ryan scoured the city over for his black-faced attractions, but found that all had been engaged by somebody else. Not to be outdone, however, he made a trip to Newnan, and secured a negro minstrel troupe from that place, at considerable expense, too, by the way.

Yesterday morning the minstrel artists reached Atlanta and reported to Mr. Ryan all right. He took them out to the exposition grounds, from which place his float was to start, and showed them his float and the place start, and showed them his noat and the place they were to occupy above the jaguar's cage. The colored artists from the country eyed the jaguar very hard, but said nothing. Be-fore the float started Mr. Ryan was called away a few minutes. When he returned his band of minstrels was utterly gene. Not hide nor hair of the Newnanites could be discovered. nor hair of the Newnanites could be discovered. They did not care to court fame in such close proximity to his jaguarship. So Mr. Ryan was minus his minstrels after

AT CHAUTAUQUA.

DR. DICKERMAN'S LECTURE ON THE

A Rather Small Audience, but an Interesting Programme Is Carried Out-The Exercises Today.

Owing to the fact that the Chautauqua train did not reach Atlanta until after THE CON-STITUTION had gone to press, it was impossible to give any report of Talmage's lecture.

Yesterday's attendance was in strong con-trast with that of the day before. Nearly everybody returned the courtesy Atlanta ex-tended on Wednesday by coming to hear Talmage. The programme was carried out to the letter, and all who attended were pleased with what they saw and heard. At 11 o'clock a. m. Mr. Vincent delighted an audience with a partly byographical and partly critical study of Balzac. The lecture was the best Mr. Vincent has yet given. A concert filled the afternoon hour. The normal lecture by Dr. Gillett at 4 o'clock, and the lecture of Dr. Lynes at the C. L. S. C. Round Table were interesting and attended by the usual number. At 7:30 o'clock the Weber orchaster gave a musical entertainment, and at 8 o'clock p. m. another of Dr. Dickerman's interesting lectures. The subject was: "The Religion of the Ancient Egyptians," and the illustrations were very fine. The following is a brief summary:

It is a comparative recent discovery that the ideas of a people merit more study than do their battles, triumphs and defeats. Certain ele-ments are common to all religions. There has been no entirely new religion since the world began. The religion of the ancient Egyptians had its local peculiarities; it was modified by the lapse of time; and it was ever making new departures. It recognized a conflict be-tween good and evil. The mythical struggle between Orsiris and Set or Typhon embodied the great fact that incarnate divinity suffered the great fact that incarnate arvinity surfered a violent death out of love, and for the weal of humanity. This was the corner stone of the most ancient religion, as it is of the most modern religion. The triads of the Egyptian gods were their pictorial method of saying that God is self-existent; has in himself all the

God is self-existent; has in himself all the powers of father, mother and child.

Mr. Dickerman discussed at length what is generally called the animal worship of the old Egyptians, and thinks it would be difficult to prove that in the earliest times those animals were any more worshipped by the Egyptians than the dove is worshipped by Christians when they set it up in their churches at Christmas. They are symbols of great facts. He also gave a description of the Serapeum, or mausoleum, at Sakkara, where the sacred bulls were interred. He then pointed out the wide distinction between the Greek splina and the Egyptian sphina, and turned to ridicule the strange mongrel specimen of neither in some of our cemeteries. The Aurora of Guido and the Egyptian Aurora were contrasted, and abundant evidence was given that all these mythical beings were simply the cemeteries. The Aurora of Guido and the Egyptian Aurora were contrasted, and abundant evidence was given that all these mythical beings were simply the emblems of forces in nature. The peroration dealt with the highest form of the Egyptian religion, its spirituality and its power. It was their religion that suggested and built their monuments, and which will make their memory and influence more enduring than all the quarries of stone which they have heaped together. It is the grandest thing they have left us.

SCOTT THORNTON AT DEGIVE'S.

A Large and Enthusiastic Audience Greets Atlanta's Young Tragedian.

The midsummer festival ended in a grand flourish last night at the opera house, with Scott Thornton in the "Fool's Revenge." Mr. Thornton has appeared in this play before in Atlanta, but the large crowd of visitors who filled the opera house last evening showed that his fame was more than local.

His first entrance was greeted with a storm of applause, which was kept up at intervals during the whole performance. Although critics disagree as to the merit of Mr. Thornton's rendition of the character of Bertuccio no one who heard him last night can gainsay that his audience enjoyed it, as was witnesse by the continuous and sustained cheers which greeted almost every soliloquy. At the end of each act this became tumultuous, and although the other members of the troup responded freely to these encores, Mr. Thornton was proof against them all, and refused to appear except at such intervals as the play demanded, and that too when his failure to respond caused the andience to call him by name, that there might be no mistake as to whom the applause was given.

Mr. Holland, who was to have taken the part of one of the principal characters, was detained on account of sickness in his family, and as the notice came too late to fill his place, his part had to be read from the book. This caused some little confusion in the play, as it was difficult for the reader to keep his place, owing to sundry tears in the pages, but the audience was lenient, and applauded freely where expressions of dissatisfaction would have been expected.

It was at some times difficult to follow the

have been expected.

It was at some times difficult to follow the dialogue, owing to the fact that that part of the audience seated in the balcony evinced a disposition to applaud on the slightest provocation, and several times marred the most impressive scenes in the play by untimely noise. This tendency seemed to grow as the play progressed, until it was checked by the timely appearance of one of the guardians of the peace.

The Funeral of Mr. A. B. Phelps Yesterday.

At 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning the funeral of Mr. Ansel B. Phelps occurred at the residence of Mr. John H. James, No. 212 West Peachtree street.

Rev. Dr. Hopkins conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Dr. Glenn. Many friends of the family were present to witness the last sad rites.

The pallbearers were Mr. W. L. Peel, Mr. W. H. Nutting, Mr. William Manry, Mr. E. F. Donehoo, Mr. W. H. Patterson and Mr. B. B. Crew. A delegation from the National Union was also present at the funeral exercises. Mr. Phelps was an honored member of this fraternity, and the association mourns his death most sincerely.

The remains were interred in Westview cometery, and a long concourse followed the cortege to the last resting place of one who in life was so well beloved by all who knew him.

COLONEL ABBOTT'S SYNOPSIS. The Author of the Bankrupt Measure

Writes Him a Very Complimentary Letter. Writes Him a Very Compilmentary Letter.
Colonel B. F. Abbott has received a very complimentary letter from the author of the bankruptcy measure, Hon. Jay L. Torrey.
And in the letter The Constitution, the first and only paper to publish a full synopsis of the pending measure, shares the honors.
Some months ago the president of the Chamber of Commerce requested Colonel Abbott to prepare a synopsis of the measure and to present his views before the Chamber,
as a lawyer, which he did.

andsto present his views before the Chamber, as a lawyer, which he did.

The remarks made before the chamber by him have been heretofore published.

THE CONSTITUTION was the first paper in the country to publish a complete synopsis of that bill, which appeared on July 27th.

The fullness and accuracy of that synopsis caught the eye of the author of the bill and led to the writing of the letter, which reads as follows:

led to the writing of the location, August 4, 1800. Hon. B. F. Abbott, Atlanta, Ga.—Dear Sir: I have seen a copy of The Constitution of the 27th ultimo, containing a synopsis of the Torrey bill, as kindly furnished by you, and write to thank you, in behalf of the cause, for your considerate services.

ultimo, containing a synopsis of the Torrey bill, as kindly furnished by you, and write to thank you, in behalf of the cause, for your considerate services.

Please kindly cause to be sent to me a copy of The Constitution of the 12th ultimo, containing your argument.

There will be sent to you by this mail a copy of the bill as passed by the house, on the 24th ultimo. You will note that the sections relating to United States district attorney were omitted, and that these acts of bankruptcy were omitted and are modified. Please kindly advise me lwhether the chamber of commerce has yet acted upon the bill, and if so what its action was.

If you are in favor of the enactment of the bill, as I infer from the contents of the article, although it is not so stated therein, I shall be glad to recommend you to our executive committee, for appointment as vice-president, as committee, and one organization. Please authorize me to do so. In the event you do so please considerately give me your first name in full. You will note that we have the first names in full of all our officers for the purpose of giving them the greatest individuality possible.

Bespeaking your early reply, I am very truly yours,

Java Torrey is a prominent citizen of St Louis, and one of the first lawyers of the state.

Judge Torrey is a prominent citizen of St Louis, and one of the first lawyers of the state of Missouri.

For this, as well as other reasons, the receipt of this letter is a source of deep gratification to Colonel Abbott.

THE NEW PATROL.

It Was Christened at Last Night's Fire-How It Works. The new patrol wagon has been christened.

It is now on regular duty, and from now on it will be familiar on the streets. The horses purchased for the wagon are fine ones, being perfectly matched dark browns. They are regular movers, and Chief Joyner will have to look to his laurels hereafter when the patrol wagon makes a run.

Patrolman Christophine, who is perfectly at home with the ribbons in hand, has been de-tailed to drive the wagon. He, with a relief, will be on duty whenever the patrol is called into use. Convenient quarters have been arranged in Cook's stable across the street from the station house for the horses and wagon. Harness of the same pattern as that used by the fire department, have been purchased. With this harness, which drops into place by the touch of a cord, the patrol wagon can be out on the street at a few moments notice. The horses stand only a few feet in front of the wagon, and they will be trained to spring under the harness at the sound of a gong.

Malaria. Is your system full of malari? Do you feel weak and mean all over? Have you got the ague? Then why don't you do something to get well? You say quinine dosen't do you any good. Well you needn't let that discourage you. There is one remedy, Smith's Tonic Syrup, made by Dr. John Bull, of Louisville, Ky., that is far ahead of quinine. It will cure chills and fever when quinine and everything else fails. This remedy never has failed. In some neighborhoods where chills and fever are common, it is found in every household. Why a man wou d as soon refuse his family food to eat, as to refuse to get another bottle of Smith's Tonic Syrup when the old bottle gave out. It is a great preventive of ague. A sinout. It is a great preventive of ague. A single dose will sometimes keep off an attack. A few doses will break up the fever and cure the chills. It does not leave any unpleasant after effects as quinine sometimes does. It will not harm the most delicate invalid. Give it a trial and you will seep to well. and you will soon be well.

GREAT DANGER.

Regard to Them.
When the Creator in His wrath (or for His glory?) saw fit to expel His first creation, His own image, from the garden of Eden, He placed on them the curse of disease and death. In after generations He visited His chosen people with many "plagues for their disobedience," but of all ny ills He inflicted upon his fallen creation none are more painful, more loathsome, or more rrible in its effects than fistula in ano; fearful in its ravages and dangerous to life, robbing one of all the pleasures of living. But, as in all other in its ravages and dangerous to life, robbing one of all the pleasures of living. But, as in all other afflictions, He has given a remedy; science in its primitive state was unable to utilize the remedy without causing most intense suffering, and oftentimes leaving the victim in a condition much worse than at first. It was left for the progressive physicians of the present age to offer you a pleasant cure for this most unpleasant disease. You need no longer fear the "knife," with all its pain and dangers, for it is unnecessary. I have laid aside all harsh means and treat you by a rational treatment that when properly applied for a sufficient time will cure you. Have you fistula? If so, it is unnecessary to ask you if you wish to be cured of it. But do you wish to avoid the intense pain of a severe operation, or are you wedded to the old belief that you cannot be cured without the crude and painful means formerly employed? If you are, I have nothing to offer you. If you are not, I offer you the very latest that science can give you. I have cured many by this rational method, and I offer the same to you confidently, promising you satisfactory results. Many ladies are afficted with fistula. To all I say, do not let your timidity prevent you from avalling yourself of this opportunity to obtain a cure. My arrangement for privacy are all you only wish. Promising to verify all my claims. TO TALK TO HOOSIERS.

GENERAL LONGSTREET WILL BE ASKED TO HARRISON'S STATE

To Speak to the Indiana Fair and Agricultural Society at Ligonier, on the 16th of September.

The big Indiana fair opens at Sigonier, Ind., on the 16th of September, and the entire state will be present. A Georgian and a confederate may speak to the hoosiers then. The association has a Soldiers' Day and a pressing invitation has been extended General Longstreet to speak on that day. The invitation assures the Georgian that he will be given an ovation such as no soldier has had since the war ended. This is the first formal invitation the Indianians have ever given a southern warrior. It is understood that General Longstreet has the invitation under advisement, and may lecture on Gettysburg

during the fair. At Knoxville the most elaborate preparations are being made to celebrate the siege of that city of October, 1863. The 7th, 8th and 9th of October are the days specially set apart, and 15,000 soldiers—ex-confederates and exunion veterans-are expected. The union commander, General Burnsides, is dead, but special arrangements are being made to re-ceive General Longstreet as Knoxville's guest. It is rumored that $500 per night has been offered General Longstreet to lecture on the chief battles of the war, and with improved health it is expected the "old war-horse" take the stage as a lecturer. With Gordon and Longstreet, Georgia can proudly boast of the two great generals who commanded the left and right wings of Lee's army at Petersburg and Appomattox.

The earlier symptoms of dyspepsia, such as distress after eating, heartburn, and occasional headaches, should not be neglected. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla if you wish to be cured of dyspepsis.

Real Estate. ORMEWOOD PARK is that beautiful tract of 100 acres just east of Grant Park and north of the Confederate Veterans' Home property. It is within one-fourth mile of Grant Park, Little Switzerland and the dummy line as it goes around the park. The dummy line to the home runs for a half mile through Ornewood, thus making every lot in the park very accessible. A large force of hands under the direction of Major Charles Boeckh is now at work grading out avenues and drives. A beautiful avenue 60 feet wide, leading direct from Grant Park and the Boulevard, has already been graded through Ormewood, thus affording one of the most attractive drives around the city. Drive out there this evening and see for yourself. Mr. Harry Woodward has just completed a handsome $4,500 residence at the head of Ormewood avenue, and several more of equal value will be erected shortly by some of our best citizens. The entire 100 acres has been subdivided in the most advantageous manner, and the lots are from one-half to three acres each. No smaller lots will be sold. To those who will erect desirable residences we will sell these lots on most liberal terms, it being the object of the owners to build up this beautiful park with first-class houses rather than sell to speculators. There is no location about the city that is as free from every objectionable feature as this property, and if you seek a suburban home you can do no better than select a lot here. Our prices are from 100 to 200 per cent below that asked for property equally as destrable in any other section.

$1,250 buys by far the most desirable vacant lot on the north side for the money. It is on Forest avenue right where those desirable vacant lot on the north side for the most. It is 50x150 feet to a 10-foot alley, lies well and is very convenient to the electric car line and the Calhoun Street school. Very liberal terms can be arranged.

3.750 for the gem of Edgewood, 150x700 feet; beautiful grove, excellent nelghborhood; the best suburban lot on the market.

5.750 for Boulevard lot on a corner, and 100x190 feet to a 20-foot alley; level and elevated and entirely covered with heavy oak grove; it is beautifully situated and overlooks the riding and driving in the park; dummy line very near but not immediately in front of lot; nice homes on either side; it is very choice.

500 each, for a few high, level and shaded lots, 50x120 feet each to a 10-foot alley, inside the city limits and just east of Capitol avenue, covered with beautiful oak grove. Easy payments.

city limits and just east of Capitol avenue, covered with beautiful oak grove. Easy payments.

$2,600, payable only $500 cash, and balance at the rate of $500 a year, with 8 per cent interest, will buy one of the neatest cottages in West End. Only 200 feet from Gordon street and the car line. House is new, and has five large rooms and kitchen. Extra wide hall, front and rear verandas. Lot level and beautiful, and 18 58x275 feet. No better location in West End, and the terms are most liberal. Come quick and get it, for it will not stay on the market long at this price.

$6,000 for choice Peachtree street lot, 60x220 feet. High, level and beautiful.

$16,000 buys a new, 3-story, 22-room boarding house, close in, and on lot 50x200 feet. A bathroom attached to every room and the entre building fitted up with all modern conveniences. HERE IS HEROISM.

A ONE-ARMED CONFEDERATE VET-

Left With an Empty Sleeve He Sets About Making a Living for Himself and His Family, and Is Succeeding,

Never was there an instance of truer bravery than the story of Private H. K. W. Cheevis, of the Eighteenth Mississippi regi-

Private Cheevis shouldered a musket and marched away to Virginia when the necessity of his country required his services.

He was a brave soldier and never shirked to esponsibility, no matter how trying.

At the battle of Chancellorsville, where Stonewall Jackson fell, and the hope-star of the south set in blood and tears, Private Cheevis received a wound which cost him his right arm.

That ended his career as a soldier, and hope-lessly crippled for life he returned to his family, and set about earning a living for his wife and children.

His was a spirit not easily daunted, and when he came to Atlanta it was not to ask alms, or to depend on the sympathies of the

But it was to better enable him, by his thrift and industry, to earn a livelihood for himself and those dependent udon him. DARK DAYS CAME.

Four years ago his faithful wife died, leaving him with seven motherless children to

His misfortunes grew still heavier when he and several of his children were stricken down, and no one left to minister to their

But true to the spirit of the organization, the Confederate Veterans' Association of Fulton tounty learned of the sad plight of their old comrade, and they came to the assistance of the suffering family. Their charity was not misplaced as the sequel will show. Private Cheevis had been making brooms for a living. His brooms were of the best matertal, and they were as good and as cheap as anybody's brooms So soon as he recovered his health he went to work with redoubled energy, and the result was that he soon began to earn an independent livelihood for his family.

He kept his children in school, furnished them with spitable books, so that they were in no wise behind their more fortunate school mates in their appointments.

And today the Chevis children are as far advanced as any children in the school that they HIS PLUCK AND SPIRIT carried him still further. He has established a broom factory, on a scale consistent with his odest means, at No. 45 Fitzgerald street.

He put in two machines that are now being operated, with a daily output of three dozen brooms. The capacity of the machines, however, is still greater, and as two of the seven children comprising his family are now getting large enough to assist their father, the factory will be run up to its full capacity.

Private Cheevis has exhibited a manly chivalry equal to that of any dashing cavaller that ever rode in the face of death up to the cannon's mouth. Appreciating this fact the Fulton County

Confederate Veterans' Association pledged itself, and each of its 800 members pledged themselves, to patronize Private Chevis, and buy his brooms in preference to those manuctured elsewhere. And now, if the good people of Atlanta will follow suit they will not only be able to secure the finest quality of goods at as cheap figures as can be had elsowhere, but they will encourage a home industry, and at the same time contribute to the comfort and prosperity of this old veteran, who has demonstrated the fact that pence has his heroes as well as war.

The declining powers of old age may be won dersully recuperated and sustained by the daily use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Warning. Many internal remedies are glibly advertised, to shorten labor and lessen the pains of Child-Birth, and with wonderful inconsistency to regulate menstruation. Common sense should teach any woman that a preparation adapted for menstrual disorders will not prepare the system for Child-Birth. We earnestly say, beware of all such; they can at this critical time do no good, and their use may be fatal. It is only by persistent external treatment, thus relaxing and softening all the parts, tha the dread hour is robbed of its pain and terror and no remedy on earth does this but "Mother's Friend." SAVING MONEY.

It is a fact not generally known, or specially ap-preciated, that much the larger per cent of the surplus money with which the general business of the country is carried on, is the savings of the the country is carried on, is the savings of the laboring people. The capitalist is an investor, and the merchant a borrower. Neither, as a class, carry surplus money. Their credit and their securities render it unnecessary, but every prudent laboring man finds it necessary to have always within reach a little surplus money, and it is the accumulation in associations and banks of these small savings that largely makes up the banking and business capital of the country. Stocks, bonds and realty are the property of the capitalist, lands of the planter, merchandise of the trader, but money of the wage earner, and it is a surprising fact that three-fourths of that circulating medium called money is the property of the capital of the country. Stocks, bonds and realty are the property of the capitalist, lands of the planter, merchandise of the trader, but money of the wage earner, and it is a surprising fact that three-fourths of that circulating medium called money is the property of the millions of prudent laboring people in the country. They are the money owners. Now, it was not this large class that this, their only capital, be invested so as to give them the surest, most flexible, most reliable, and securest income until it passes from their possession into a home or some other form of permanent investment, when they cease to become strictly indoor, when they cease to become strictly indoor, and the surest, most flexible, most reliable, and securest income until it passes from their possession into a home or some other form of permanent investment, when they cease to become strictly indoor, and they capitally known institutions for this purpose are the loan and building associations and the savings banks. The object of each is to extend to men and women of small earnings an opportunity and an inducement to husband their savings and make them a source of revenue. The loan and building association requires weekly or monthly payments of a certain fixed amount on a certain fixed day. Despite sickness or loss of situation, that fixed amount must be forthcoming on that fixed amount must be forthcoming on that fixed amount must be forthcoming on that fixed and yor a fine is imposed that absorbs the earnings of that payment. The system is fixed, inflexible.

Now as to the savings bank. The investor can deposit his savings on any day, and in any amount. This deposit can be regulated to suit his earnings, begins drawing interest on the day of deposit, is always at his command, and can be drawn out, with accured interest, whenever misfortune demands, or the chance for permanent investment offers. He knows beyond contingency what he is getting for his money. Every hight the calculation can be made exact. It is flexible. If fortune fa

ON THE TARIFF. The Senate Still on the Tin Plate Paragraph Senator Plumb Gives Notice of an Amendment.

Washington, August 14.—In the senate Mr. Plumb, from the committee on appropriations, reported the senate joint resolution appropriating for the relief of the destitution of Oklahoma the unexpended balance of the appropriation made last April for the relief of the district overflowed by the Mississipple the district overflowed by the Mississippl river, and it was passed.

The tariff bill was taken up, the pending question being on Mr. Vest's amendment (offered last Monday) to reduce the duty on tin plate (paragraph 137, page 28), from 2 2-10 cents to 1 cent per pound.

Mr. Mitchell addressed the senate in defense of the high protective system. He discussed in detail, and generally in terms of commendation, the bill as reported by the finance committee; qualifying his commendation, however, on the sugar question, and expressing the opinion that the provisions of the house bill on that point were preferable to those recommended by the finance committee. The delivery of his speech occupied two hours and a half.

delivery of his speech occupied two hours and a half.

He was followed by Mr. Reagan in an argument to controvert the position taken by Mr. Mitchell, to the effect that congress had the constitutional power to levy taxes in order to regulate trade and industries. He was subjected, on the part of Mr. Mitchell, to what he called "a catechism," the principal question in which was on what classes of imported goods he would have duties imposed in the tariff for revenue only—on those not produced in this country, or on those produced here; and he replied that he would only have ad valorem rates, would tax tea, coffee, sugar, iron and steel, and woolen and cotton goods and would have raw materials on the free list, but with a corresponding reduction of duty on lanufactures into which such raw material entered. He characterized Mr. Mitchell's speech as an elaborate and ingenious argument for the subversion of the constitution in order to benefit a few at the exmious argument for the subversion of the constitution in order to benefit a few at the expense of many.

Plumb gave notice of an amendment which he would offer, to strike out of paragraph 137 the provision imposing a duty on tin plate, and to add to the paragraph a provision to pay to manufacturers of tin plate made in the United States a bounty of one cent per pound. He expressed great doubt as to the effect of the proposition of the finance committee. He doubted very much that it would permanently introduce into this country manufactures of tin plates in quantities sufficient for domestic consumption. He doubted it for various reasons—one of them being that he had observed that American manufacturers had been swift to avail themselves of duties that gave them a large profit manufacturers had been swift to avail themselves of duties that gave them a large profit on articles made by them, and had formally abandoned production of other articles that gave them only small profits.

Mr. Plumb argued at some length against the increase of duty on tin plate, and concluded with the proposition that if the duty was to be taken off sugar, an agricultural product of Louisiana and Texas, and, to some extent, of Kansas and Nebraska, and if a bounty was offered to domestic sugar-growers, bounty was offered to domestic sugar-growers, why, he asked, should not the same principle be extended to the tin plate industry?

Mr. Carlisle presented a letter which he had received today from the commissioner of labor, showing the labor cost in a ton of steel rails at showing the labor cost in a ton of steel rails at three points—an establishment in the north of the United States, one in Great Britain, and one in Belgium. The cost at the first was given at $11.59, at the second at $7.81 and at the third at $8.10. He also read a letter received by him today from Charles W. Potts, of Philadelphia, a large consumer of tin plate, to the effect that he had applied to all rolling mills in the vicinity of Pittsburg for the price on the thickness of steel plate out of which canning tin plate is made, and that all except one stated that they could not make steel plates as thin as remade, and that an except one stated that they could not make steel plates as thin as required, and that one firm that could make them asked 54 cents per pound for them (untinned), while the present selling price of tin plate—duty, freight, etc., included—is only 4.22 cents per pound.

Mr. Albrich accounted for that on the

Mr. Aldrich accounted for that on the round that as there was no demand in this Mr. Aldren ascended the ground that as there was no demand in this country for steel plates of such extreme thinness there was no plant for rolling them, but he predicted that if the duty on tin plates was increased all rolling mills would in a very short time be provided with the requisite plant short time be provided with the requisite plant.

Mr. Bate addressed the senate in a general review and condemnation of the bill. He ridicaled the idea that the farmers would derive any benefit under it, and said, in reference to duties on farm products, that while "the voice was the voice of Jacob, the hand was the hand of Esau." The bill might be a revision of the tariff, but it was not a reduction of taxation.

A vote was then taken, and Mr. Vest's

A vote was hor a reduction of daxation.

A vote was then taken, and Mr. Vest's amendment was rejected. Yeas 26, nays 30, Mesrs. Davis and Plumb being the only republicans voting in the affirmative. Mr. Ingalls did not vote, and Mr. Paddock voted with a negative. In the negative.

Mr. Piumb offered an amendment, of which he had given notice, to strike out the clause imposing a duty of 2 2-10 cents a pound on tin plate, reserving the other part of the proposition as to bounty.

ion as to bounty.

Mr. Higgins said that if Mr. Plumb's amendment meant that tin plate should be put on the free list, it was the only consistent ground that could be taken by those who opposed the proposition of the finance committee. Mr. Plumb withdrew his amendment and offered another, making the duty on tin plate 1 cent per pound, and providing a bounty of 1 cent per pound on the plate manufactured in the United States.

Without proceeding further in the matter,

the senate adjourned.

AN APPEAL FOR THE DESTITUTE. No Money for the Starving People, but Plenty to Raise Salaries.

Washington, August 14.—First business in order this morning in the house was a vote on sustaining the decision of the chair, overruling the point of order made by Mr. Springer, of Illinois, that the Nat McKay relief bill must be considered in committee of the whole.

The decision sustained. Yeas, 114; nays, 31, the speaker counting a quorum Mr. Struble, of Iowa, asked unanimous consideration of a joint res Massachusetts, and Mr. McClaniny, of Moren Carolina, objected.

Mr. Belden, of New York, askedlunanimous consent for the consideration of the bill grant-ing leave of absence to per diem employes in the customs service.

Mr. Cheadle, of Indiana, objected; Mr. Canon. of Illinois, remarking that the honor could not afford in one breath to object to a bill for the retief of starving citizens of the United States in Oklahoma and in the next to grant additional pay to federal officials who were already recolving good salaries.

The house then resumed consideration of the Nat McKay bill.

the Nat McKay bill.

After speeches in favor of the bill by Mr.
Thomas, of Wisconsin, and Mr. Stone, of Kentucky, and in opposition by Mr. Springer of Illinois, the latter gentleman moved to commit the measure to the committee on war claims. No quorum was developed on this vote, and subsequent of forts to seems one proving measiling. quent efforts to secure one proving unavailing, the house, at 4:05 o'clock, adjourned.

THERE WAS CONSIDERABLE BUZZING And It Is Thought It Was About the Compromise on the Tariff Bill. washington, August 14.—During the two hours and a half occupied in the delivery of Mr. Mitchell's speech in the senate this morning the two Pennsylvania senators held frequent conferences with Mr. Vest, on the democratic side of the chamber. Mr. Plumb also had a long and carnest talk with him. Mr. Quay afterwards flitted around his own side of the chamber and exchanged views with some of the senators from the new states. These conferences may have had no connection with the pending compromise for the tion with the pending compromise for the passage of the tarif bill and the adjournment of the session without action on the federal election bill, but it is quite likely that

A LADY AND A BURGLAR. A Black Villain Found Hiding Under Bed.

From The Philadelphia News. It was just after the war, and things were in rather a chaotic state. We—my husband, my little one and I—were living in Richmond then. On the night of which I write, I could see that John was worrled about something. He seemed preoccupied all during supper, and after the things were cleared away he took his seat at the table with a pile of medical books reaching above his head on the right, and an immense volume spread open before him.

He evidently had a puzzling case on hand, and was not in a humor to be talked to. I took out my crocheting, and worked for a short time on little Anna's sacque. Then I yawned, crocheted a round or two, yawned again, and finally, in despair, folded up my work, and went up stairs to my room. Little Anna had preceded me there, and lay tucked away in a corner of my bed, in the rosiest slumber imaginable.

"I won't put her in her crib just yet," I thought, "she is sleeping so sweetly." I had got, in the process of disrobing, to the point of dressing wrapper and slippers and was shaking out my hair preparatory to its arrangement for the night, when the brush slipped from my hand and fell with a sharp ring upon the floor. As I stooped to pick it up a sight met my eyes the very recollection of which makes me grow hot and cold by turns. A negro was under my bed. He was drawn up as close as possible to the wall and lay there watching me. I am only an average woman, not particularly courageous or particularly anything that I know of. How I ever kept from shrieking or fainting will ever remain a mystery to me. Supernatural strength must have come to my aid. I felt in a moment the importance of concealing from this man the fact that I was aware of his presence. I arose from my stooping posture and began brushing my hair with the utmost coolness and deliberation, but a very white face looked back at me from the mirror before which I stood. I believe, if anything, I brushed my hair longer than usual that night; then, dividing it into two parts with great exactness, I began plaiting it, turning over in my mind all the while what course of action I should adopt. Suddenly I remembered that I had forgotten to bring up the basket of silver, which we always kept in our room at night.

"There." I exclaimed aloud, "I left the silver down stairs. I must ask John to bring it up with him."

"John! Oh, John!" I said, going out in the passage and calling down the steps, "bring the spoons and forks up with you when you have to go down for them myself."

There was no answer. The dining room door was shut and John was deep in his book. "How provoking!" I exclaimed. "I will have to go down for them myself."

Every detail of that night's adventure seems graven, as with an iron pen, upon my mind. The very sound of my slippers—loose at the heel—as I went down the bare steps is distinct in my memory.

"John," I said, as closing the dining room door behind mel I crossed the room and placed my hand upon my husband's shoulder, "don't exclaim at what I am going to tell you. There is a man under the bed in our room. He doesn't know that I have seen him. Slip quietly out at the back door and call for help before he makes his escape." I I don't think ten minutes could have elapsed before my husband returned, accompanied by two policemen armed to the very teeth, but it seemed like hours to me as I stood there thinking of our little one sleeping so unconsclously on our bed, and of the villain lying beneath it. He was a big, burly fellow, it was discovered, when at last he had been dragged from his hiding place and induced to assume the perpendicular. On his person, in addition to my diamond ring, gold watch and set of pearls, was found a bottle of chloryform, a big knife and a loaded revolver. The next day a very tremulous heroine was reading in the morning paper an account of a brave woman's adventure with a burglar. The tremulous heroine was myself. The brave woman—the account said she was myself, too.

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, August 14.—The money question

still continues to be the most important on Wall street, and the market is again in a waiting mood, owing to the non-success of the secretary in seowing to the non-success of the secretary in securing enough silver to make an issue of notes that would have any effect upon rates for money. The market, as usual for the past few days, opened with a little boom, but the demand was not sufficient to keep up the improvement, and only a slight pressure sagged prices off slowly. Early London figures were lower than ours of last night, but the rally in progress at the close was carried over this morning, and first prices generally showed advances of from ½ to ½ per cent over last evening's figures. The movement in Rock Island was the only feature of the forenoon's trading, and while there was a dropping tendency developed no material change in quotations was developed no material change in quotations was brought about. In the duliness of the regular list, however, Sugar Refineries were again brought to the front, and after the first hour showed considerable activity at advancing prices. It scored a gain of nearly 2 per cent over its lowest figures, but failed to stimulate trading in anything else in the market. Denver and Rio Grande preferred was a strong feature of the regular list, and it, until the last hour, was the only stock showing any real strength. The money market eased off late in the day, however, and an easier feeling on money pre-vailed. The bears soon realizing that the situa-tion had changed, began to cover their shorts. A rather sharp upward movement took place at that time, which sent Sugar Refineries up 3 per cent, and stocks of the regular list from a fraction to 1½. The demand ceased only with the close of business, and the close was quiet but strong at the highest prices of the day. The outcome of the day is that there is a pretty general feeling on the street that prices have reacted during the week to the lowest prices that will be touched this year. It was seen that the effect of the strikes was much less than had been predicted, and some of the day, however, and an easier feeling on money preless than had been predicted, and some of the more prominent bills were free buyers of active stocks. The entire list is higher tonight. Sales

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular. NEW YORK, August 14—[Special.]—Foreign ad-cless were of a decidedly disappoing tenor this norning, as an advance on August and September morning, as an advance on August and September deliveries was confidently looked for in response to our sharp rally yesterday afternoon. A portion of the August purchased last evening was freely offered this morning, breaking the market 10 points but this decline was quickly recovered, when it was discovered the purchases were being made for exporters' account, and the market closed quiet and steady at a small decline upon August. The other deliveries were steadier than yesterday, though no appreciable advance can be recorded. Crop advices are of the most flattering character, dry weather being reported throughout the Atlantic states. The receipts of new cotton were not excessive, though offers for forward delivery were more freely made. Our cable advices state a large business is being done in August-September with the feeling not quite so confident as of late. Our market, however, expects a better tone to tomormarket, however, expects a better tone to tomor-row's advices from abroad.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, August 14-Wheat-A large specula tive business was again transacted, and the feeling was unsettled. Prices fluctuated frequently within the established range. The opening was weak, and prices 16.7% lower than yesterday's closing and quickly sold off 16. more under rather free speculative offerings, then railied 19.21% above inside figures, but again eased off, ruling with some irregularity, and closed about 1/20% lower than yesterday. No new features were presented, and the market was governed by the same character of influences mentioned for several character of influences mentioned for several days, and assisted by speculation.

Corn was fairly active with the feeling weaker, though toward the close the market ruled somewhat steadier. The market opened at ½c decline, and, under liberal offerings, sold off ½c more, when a prominent local trader began to take on fair quantities, which checked the decline, and prices worked up ¾@¾c, ruled steady and closed at a decline, compared with yesterday, of ¾@¾c Oats were fairly active but unsettled, and prices covered a range of 1½c. The opening was weak with the first sales at ½@¾c decline, and prices receded 1c, followed by a reaction to opening figreceded ic, followed by a reaction to opening figures. Weakness again developed, however, and prices receded 1/60, and the market closed quiet at a net decline of 3/60/40.

Mess pork—Trading was quite active. A decline of 25@30c was submitted to, but prices rallied 12% @17%c and closed steady. Lard-Trade was fairly active. Prices declined Lard—Trade was fairly active. Prices declined 2½,65c, but rallied slightly and closed steady at medium figures.

Short ribs—Quite an active trade was reported. An early reduction of 567½ in prices was submitted to. Later prices rallied 567½, and the market closed comparatively steady.
